Thanks
million!

• During the four years I have been in the Public Relations Department of the Altes Brewing Company, and especially the last two years as Director of said department, I have found the Associates' "Directory of Negro Businesses, Professions and Churches for Detroit and Environs" to be an invaluable aid in departmental work.

• The concise yet complete information contained therein regarding Detroit's Negro population has saved us countless hours of contact, research and survey work. Furthermore, and of extreme importance, the information is meticulously correct.

• We at Altes are happy to take this opportunity to commend Messrs. John Cuspart and Reuben Hughes for their outstanding contribution to the business and industrial life of the area.

Sincerely,

Frank M. Seymour

• Editor's Note

Mr. Seymour is the only Negro so employed in a major American industry . . . Detroiters are immeasurably proud of the Altes Brewing Company and their Public Relations Director . . . our friend . . . Frank M. Seymour.

Accounting—Good Records

By RICHARD H. AUSTIN

NO BUSINESS is completely private these days.

SUPPOSE:

- You need a loan at the bank—or—
- You need credit from a supplier—
- You want to sell your business—
- You want to bring in a partner—
- You want somebody to invest in your business—
- You are involved in a tax argument—

In each of these cases, somebody else—at hird party—is concerned with facts about your business.

Of course, he wants to see your financial statements. He relies on them for information he needs in order to decide whether to give you the loan, invest his money, ascertain a tax liability, or take whatever action that may be invilved.

Such statements cannot be furnished unless you keep good records. The need for complete and accurate records grows in direct proportion to the size of a business.

Since every business is started with the expectation of success and growth, it is obviously no more than good common sense to maintain certain basic business records from the very start. This means that, beginning with the various receipts and expenditures in getting a business under way, transactions should be recorded and properly classified. When a business is in the organiza-tion stage the transaction can be recorded in an informal manner. But when the business begins to operate, formal records should be kept in adequate set of books. These records will not only disclose the results from operations but will also provide the basis for financial planning.

No business would start constructing a new building without an architect or a blueprint. Likewise, the blueprint idea, so essential in CONSTRUCTING a place of business, is essential in CONDUCTING the business. In accounting terms, financial planning serves the function of a blueprint. It can help prevent losses, go a long way toward assuring profits, and raise danger signals far enough in advance so that hazards can be eliminated.

Travel Etiquette

It is with a great deal of pleasure I am sharing with you some of my personal experiences of traveling and living so to speak "packed up".

In the world of business, all of us realize that we must stay groomed from morning 'til night, and that we must make the most of everyday. (Now we're off for the trip).

It is very necessary that one make reservations, if humanly possible, this avoids frustration and undo periods of waiting. Traveling first class insures one of the best services and relaxes one so that the days ahead are enjoyable and profitable.

Packing can be very interesting if we know just what we need for a week or even ten days. Nylon and many other synthetic materials have been our answer to this problem.

Since traveling has become part of our everyday life it has become necessary for each of us to acquaint ourselves with traveling "laws" or custom rules. There are certain do's and don'ts we should know and practice. Whether we travel every week or once a year these customs are designed to make it a pleasant and restful experience.

Around the globe wearing apparel. — On trips you should travel lightly taking with you only the essential things. Cloths that are loose and comfortable and do not soil or wrinkle easily will add to your comfort and appearance.

A small bag carried in addition to your regular luggage will take care of those items you will want handy on the way. Before you start make certain you know where you're going and how to arrive with all your baggage intact.

Travelers' checks are the safest form in which to carry money. They can be purchased at any bank or railway office, for a small fee per hundred dollars. Travelers' checks, issued in amounts of ten or twenty, are the best known and can be cashed anywhere.

If you use the diner, you will know when meals are being served by the announcement, "First call to the diner", made in every car. "Last call to diner", warns not to wait much longer if you wish to be served. The diner is usually located midway in the passenger carrying part of the train. You will be greeted by a steward when you enter the diner. He will then give you a menu and a pad upon which to write your order. Try to write clearly. In a diner you always pay your waiter at the table.

Good conduct should be one of our daily habits, so a brief reminder of this subject is all that's necessary. There's nothing quite so obnoxious as a loud mouth. Be considerate of others, keep your conversation within hearing of those concerned.

Ladies will find cleansing cream and a skin refresher very practical on trips. Gentlemen should avail themselves with a razor (electric or safety) talcum and/or shaving lotion to add to their comfort.

The next time you travel, try the above suggestions. You'll be delighted with the new feeling of confidence and assurance of one who knows how to travel.

INK STAIN—ON RUGS OR CARPETS

Apply a dampened soft cloth immediately or use soft white blotters. Do not rub, but press against the stain. Use plenty of clean cloths or blotters. If ink remains, use a pointed stick and apply a few drops of oxalic acid solution. Absorb with clean white cheesecloth, then touch stain with diluted household ammonia. Use white blotters to absorb moisture.

Life Insurance—Man's Greatest Creation

By THOMAS A. CLEVELAND, Business Insurance, Great Lakes Mutual Life Ins. Co.

The ability to create is, perhaps, God's greatest gift to man. That skill is probably responsible for making our modern way of life what it is today. Man's achievements, in this respect, are many, and each play an important role in our way of life. But LIFE INSURANCE is regarded by many as one of his greatest creations. It is the one instrument which urges him on to higher goals, saying in essence: "If you fail to reach your goal, fear not for those who are left behind, for I am their protector."

Whether or not life insurance ranks as his most valuable creation is really not too important. But, what is of signal consideration is what it does for the individual. It is, as its name implies, "Life Insurance", and not "Death Insurance". Why so many people think of life insurance in terms of death is a most question. It could be because of their unfamiliarity with its many advantages. If so, perhaps these views will be of some value to those who want to make a success of this business called living. First, we will consider man and his business, then man and his family.

LIFE INSURANCE AND BUSINESS

Besides being the House of Protection for a man and his family, life insurance plays another important role in the field of business. It is, perhaps, the most important single factor which makes possible an opportunity for the small business man. By protecting a business interest, and by preserving an estate, man has been able to pass on to his heirs all of that he has accumulated during a life time. In many instances he has made possible continuous employment for thousands of workers, which, in turn, have helped to keep the doors of small business open. Moreover, life insurance has been a financial angel for these same businesses during critical periods by providing money which was not available from any other source. Financial institutions recognize it as the world's best collateral, which, accordingly, enhances the credit position of any firm during periods of stress. What is more, sound partnerships consider it a must because perpetual life is assured. This means that the surviving partner will one day get the business, and the deceased's heirs will get a fair cash settlement for his business interest. Lastly in importance, it protects small closed corporations by keeping the stock out of undesirable hands. In essence, life insurance and business is like man and wife— inseparable. However, life insurance never sleeps and is forever ready to step in to keep a business alive when a man and his managerial skills are gone.

LIFE INSURANCE AND THE FAMILY

Man's most important responsibility, it seems, is to his family. He is suppose to provide shelter for them, food, clothing, and other essential of life. In other words, man is a husband and father first, and in addition, an income producing machine. When the "ghost who walks" pays him a visit, that income producing machine is destroyed. This is one of the exact points where life insurance becomes the family's best friend. At the same time, it becomes an enemy of those hazards which tend to destroy the family unit.

Here, then, is the job which life insurance does. It steps in to complete the responsibilities of a husband and father who was not granted enough time. Succinctly, it provides money at that moment when it is needed most to pay the deceased's debts, doctor bills, funeral expense, etc. It provide continuous income in monthly installments for a year or two, so that his widow and children can gradually adjust to their new level of living. It pays off the mortgage balance, assuring them that they will never be parked on the sidewalk in front of a home which they no longer own. These considerations are but a fraction of what life insurance will do for a family. Yet, it is a comfortable feeling, while none of us desire to die, to know that our family will live on just as though we were there.

Over and above this, the real thrill comes to those individuals who are fortunate enough to be around in the late afternoon years of life. Assured dollars, which have been sent ahead, are on hand to make retirement beautiful and worry-free. There is no second chance, and no one knows this better than a man who reaches old age with an empty purse.

Living, then, is one business which no man can evade. Poor planning during his productive years may mean that his family will live like millionaires while he is on the scene, and like paupers after he is gone. However, a well-managed family welcomes life insurance, for man knows that it is the House of Protection for himself and his family.

LOUIS TOMPKINS WRIGHT, 1891-1952

("Work well done for a better, brighter tomorrow")

Dr. Louis Wright was born in LaGrange, Georgia, July 22, 1891, the youngest of two sons born to Dr. Ceah Ketcham and Mrs. Lula Tompkins Wright. Dr. Wright's father practiced medicine briefly in Rome, Ga., joined the ministry, and pastored churches in Savannah and Brunswick, Georgia. He died in 1895, when Louis was four years old. Louis' elder brother died at ten years old. Four years later when Louis was ten, his mother married Dr. William Fletcher Penn, who came to Atlanta to settle upon completing his internship at Freedmen's Hospital in Washington, D. C. A very deep mutual affection grew between Louis and his stepfather.

Young Louis received his elementary, secondary and College education at Clark University in Atlanta. Dr. Wright commented that his inclination for getting into trouble was a source of great pain for his mother and stepfather, and his future was dimly regarded by the leading educators of the community. Nevertheless, he was valedictorian of his class on graduation from Clark University in 1911. Such scholastic honors gave unmistakable evidence of leadership which were to characterize his later years.

Louis' stepfather, Dr. Penn, full encouraged him in his desire to study medicine, and sent him to Boston in advance of an acceptance to Harvard Medical School, to acquaint himself with the city, and take any admission exams that might be necessary. Upon arrival in Boston, Dr. Wright had neither funds nor friends, and spent the summer working as a bell-boy in the Brunswick Hotel.

Upon presenting himself for application for Harvard Medical School, he was graciously received because his academic records from Clark University, Atlanta, was mistaken for records from Clark University in Worcester, Massachusetts, then a highly rated institution. After a heated interview with Dr. Otto Folin, an internationally famous biochemist, Louis was admitted.

In 1915 Dr. Wright graduated from Harvard University Medical School, cum laude and fourth in his class. His average for the four years was 0.27 behind that of the leader. Dr. Wright was not elected to the Alpha Omega Alpha, the honorary medical fraternity, because of one black ball.

Dr. Wright's unsuccessful attempts to obtain internship at Boston City Hospital, Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, and Massachusetts General Hospital was disheartening, and at the suggestion of his stepfather, Dr. Penn, he applied to Freedmen's Hospital in Washington, D. C., where Dr. Penn had interned. Dr. Wright lived a full life at Freedmen's and established many warm and lasting personal relationships. He passed the Maryland, New York, and Georgia state boards with a high average.

As Dr. Wright's internship drew to a close, he learned of his stepfather's financial difficulties and changed his previous plans of opening up for practice in the North, and returned to Atlanta. He remained in Atlanta for only about a year before joining the Army in 1917.

Dr. Wright was commissioned a first lieutenant in the U. S. Medical Corps., sent to training camp at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, thence to Camp Upton, New York. He was assigned to the 367 Infantry Regiment—92nd Division. He went overseas, saw considerable action in France, and was gassed along with an entire battalion. After three weeks in the hospital Dr. Wright returned to active duty, but with permanent damage to his lungs. Dr. Wright was never recommended for promotion by his colonel although he was classed as being the best doctor in the Division. Later he was placed in charge of the surgical wards of the 366th Field Hospital, where he served until the end of the war. Dr. Wright's major illness forced him to eventually resign his commission with great disappointment and when World War II came, he was confined to strict bed-rest in Biggs Memorial Hospital at Ithaca, New York.

On the basis of a study conducted while interning at Freedmen's Hospital, Dr. Wright showed that the Schick test for diphtheria was valid in Negroes. He introduced the intradermal method of vaccination. He devised a splint for cervical fractures, and introduced a special plate for the repair of certain types of fractures of the femur. Dr. Wright developed a plate out of inactive material for the repair of recurrent hernias. He and his team of workers were the first to use the antibiotic, aureomycin in man.

In 1920 Dr. Wright became police surgeon of the City of New York, the first Negro to hold a position of that rank in any American City. He was the first to be made director of a Department in a non-segregated Municipal Hospital; first to be admitted to fellowship in the American College of Surgeons (1934) after Dr. Daniel H. Williams, who was admitted at the inception of the College.

Although man must die, Dr. Louis Tompkins Wright was truly a great physician, who fought and worked untiringly for the betterment of the lives of all people. It is very certain that his spirit will live on in many of the hearts and minds of those who came in contact with him, inspiring them to greater and loftier heights. For those not fortunate enough to experience such contact, Dr. Wright's contributions are on record for all who desire to see and read. Tomorrow will be brighter and better when work is well done today. May you rest in peace.

What Is A Realtist?

A Realtist is a member of the National Association of Real Estate Brokers. All Realtists are governed by the constitution and they are required to abide by the code of ethics. The National Association of Real Estate Brokers and the member boards must pass favorable judgment on the character, reliability and integrity of each applicant before admittance. A Realtist is expected to be fair and honest with the public and to respect the rights and privileges of his fellow Realtists.

Duties of a REALTIST to the Customer

Duty to Owner can never justify misleading the Customer. An invitation to do business with him, extended by a Broker to the Public, should be a guarantee of honorable and straight-forward dealing; and no instructions from clients can justify his dealing in any other manner.

A Realtist should inspect property before offering. In order to accurately describe property, its location and surroundings, to avoid error, exaggeration or charges of bad faith, an agent offering it should make a personal examination of property before presenting it to a customer.

A Realtist should state facts only in offering Property. The Realtist should offer each property solely on its merits as to location, convenience, plan, quality and price, affording full opportunity to inspect, making no exaggerated or misleading statements, giving truthful replies to questions asked and not in word, act or any other manner become charge with deception.

A Broker should advise examination of of Title by Buyer. When dealing with clients, the agent should recommend that the Title of the Property be Certified as good by a competent examiner.

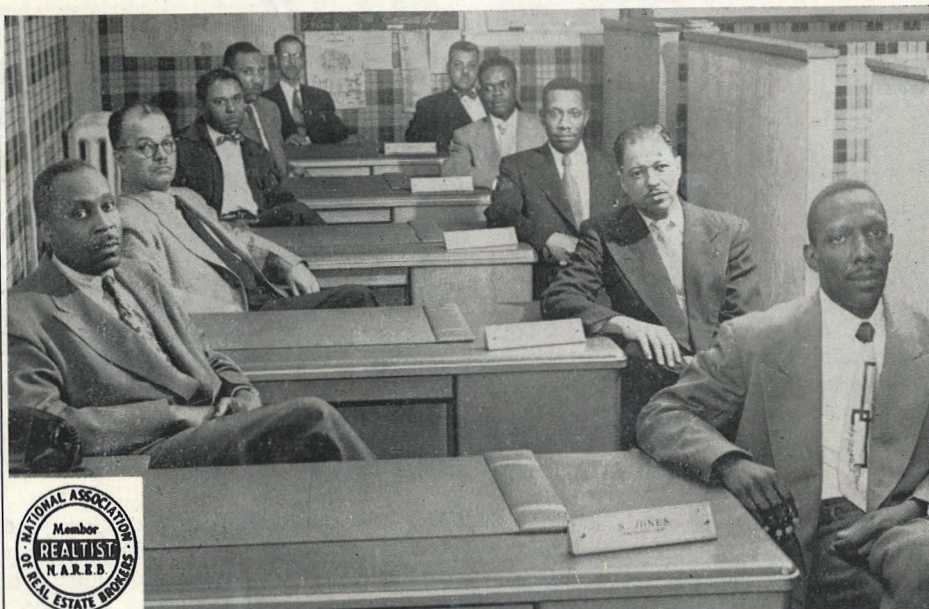

Duties of Realtist in Closing Deal. In negotiating and closing deals the Realtist should exercise care to see that all papers, adjustments and details are correct, and provide a complete closing statement.

A Broker should collect but one Commission on each Property. A Broker employed by a customer to buy or rent Property is the customer's agent and cannot act for and accept Commission from the seller without knowledge and consent of both parties.

Associate Brokers Investment Co.

8282 Grand River

Phone TYler 5-7030

Associate Brokers Investment Company was organized January 1, 1953 at 8282 Grand River. The Company is departmentalized to handle every phase of real estate service. It represents a combined knowledge of 100 years of real estate training and experience, with James Del Rio as broker, Hawkins Steel and L. S. Moore in the Mortgage Department, Theodore Bell and Ruby Williams in the Farm and Suburban Department, Harland E. Rudd in the Management Department, Sylvester Jones in the Insurance Department, and Edward C. Bailey in the Appraisal Department.

The Company has a total of 23 salesmen, including such top salespersons as Marguerite Massey, Virgil Ross, Ernest Massey, Luther Walden, Bennie Gilmore, James Boykin, Edward Matchett, Sophie Walker, Walter Witt, and many others.

George Higgins, of the Higgins Insurance Agency, is located in the same building, and has been an asset to the organization from its inception.

Associate Brokers represents the largest company of its kind in the city of Detroit. The legal advisor for the Company is Att'y Hobart Taylor. What Associate Brokers has done in the real estate field is something that every small Businessman should know about. Ten real estate brokers with plenty of know-how, experience, and honest, and dependable reputations got together and decided that in unity there was strength. Instead of having 10 small real estate offices, each feebly competing with each other, these brokers have united into one large beautifully and modernly furnished office at 8282 Grand River where every real estate service is offered and is capably and intelligently handled. Before you buy or sell, check with Associate.

Life Insurance—"Man's Greatest Creation"

LIFE INSURANCE AND YOU

Once more, it seems desirable to repeat that Life Insurance is man's best friend. Because its value never changes, and one can't lose that which he has put in, it is a type of security which surpasses such investments as stocks, bonds, and even real estate.

Just think, one premium deposited with an insurance company may mean a wind-fall profit of several thousand dollars. Thus a premium is one's guarantee that all is well. Actually, it is smaller than a ladder resting against a grain of sand when compared with what Life Insurance does for the individual.

The individual, then, is the only person who can answer that one big question: Is Life Insurance man's greatest creation? What do you think?

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

DYES AND COLORS THAT RUN . . .

If washable, rinse stain in luke-warm water. If necessary use several changes of water. For stains on woolens or silk, soak in cold water. For white silk, soak stains in diluted solution of hydrogen peroxide and ammonia water (ammonium hydroxide), then rinse thoroughly.

GRAPE JUICE STAIN

Stretch stain over a bowl and hold in place with a rubber band. Pour boiling water through stain at a height of two feet. Rub spot gently and repeat. If stain remains, use sodium perborate or hydrogen peroxide. Use a medicine dropper.

INK STAINS

1. Sponge with water — with white blotter underneath to absorb stain.
2. Apply glycerine and rub into stain.
3. Sponge with acetic acid and rinse well.
4. If stains remains, use a dropper and one or two drops of oxalic acid, then rinse off.
