No. 220 New Series

JULY 1963

"Let's face it—enough has already been written about the state of the putting greens at Royal Birkdale. It's easy for a reporter to buttonhole a chap who has just three- and four-putted his way round a golf course in 92 and make headlines of his not unnatural vehemence. It does less than justice, however, to the tremendous efforts of the head greenkeeper and his staff to make the course playable at all after the depredations of the severest freeze-up in living memory."

June "Golf Fixtures".
