

"We left home at unbelievable hours in the morning and drove hundreds of miles to demonstrate the machinery but it was all worthwhile once the customer had been convinced it was the equipment he needed".

The latest Turner campaign "Save a Sapling" is aimed at sparing hedgerow trees. Mechanical cutting has achieved the retention of Britain's hedges. Without a cost effective machine farmers would have ripped them out and moved over to prairie style farming.

Now with cutting machinery so responsive to the operator's control, there is no need to cut at the same height all along a hedge.

The "Save a Sapling" campaign launched at The Royal Show is linked with yellow weatherproof tree tags to mark the sapling destined to grow into a roadside tree.

"All part of our preservation, health and safety and country conservation policy", said Graham.

He knows what he is talking about. Why kill off the tree that in ten years time will require the services of a Turner's Wood Chipper!

TECHNICAL 2

The versatile Turner Tiger

A smaller rough cut mower the Turner Tiger is also new to the company range. Petrol driven with either a Kawasaki or Kohler engine the rotary cutters come in a side or rear discharge. Although not as manoeuvrable as the Hustler the Tiger is ideal for cutting fairway rough and at a price starting at £3,500 + VAT it is good value for money.

Turner's are also deeply into future development. They are well aware that to keep ahead of the opposition a company of their size needs to invest time and money in research and development. Currently they are investing around a quarter of a million pounds a year with the emphasis on producing machinery for the finer cutting of leisure turf.

Greater emphasis on conservation and recycling waste products has led to an increase in the demand for wood chippers. Brush hedge trimmings and even small trees can be turned into beneficial organic mulch or used as an inexpensive and attractive base material for paths and walkways.

Turner's 70TR Chipper mounted on a 40 hp tractor by a three point linkage can turn out between two and three tons of chippings an hour and cope quite easily with wood up to 9 inches in diameter.

Sales Director Graham Satchwell, an energetic 40 year old has been with the company for 20 years.

"My days as a demonstrator were the happiest of my life,"

says

Graham Satchwell

He started life with Turner's in the factory and has moved along the path of demonstrator, fitter, sales representative and sales manager and is currently the director responsible for both the marketing and sales.

In addition to dealers in various European countries they now have wholly owned subsidiary companies in Atlanta, USA and Melbourne, Australia, with around 40% of the production exported.

In this country Turner's machinery is distributed through a 27 outlet dealer network, backed by company demonstrators, fitters and a spare parts facility.

Enthusiasm, dedication and company involvement by all employees has had considerable influence on the success of the firm, Graham Satchwell, with a wistful look in the eye, still believes his days as a demonstrator were the happiest days of his life.
