

Tribute to Richard Aitken Senior

It is with a sad heart that I write this obituary to Richard Aitken Senior. Dick, as he was known throughout Scotland, started his long career as a representative for Austin and McAuslans. I first remember him in 1947 when he did his calls by bus, train and walking. None of the reps in these days had cars. Dick though he was lucky if he made more than two calls a day then. He served throughout the war in the Army and saw action in France and Belgium. On returning he again took up with Austin and McAuslan.

It was always a pleasure to get a quarterly visit from Dick. We never considered that he was there to sell, it was more like a visit from an old friend who brought with him the news from the other golf clubs. I never remember him pressing for an order and whether or not he got one he never seemed upset. I used to make remarks about his car. He would look aghast and say the price it cost, as if it belonged to someone else. He was never presumptuous. Dick Aitken never changed. He was the same quite man I knew 50 years ago.

In 1963 Dick went into business for himself opening up a place in Waterloo Street in Glasgow. From there he never looked back. He took his son Richard into partnership and they moved to more roomy premises in Stockwell Place. Finally they moved to new purpose-built premises in Harmony Row, Govan, where anyone could see Dick in his office anytime they called – he had time for everyone. His Seeds and Fertilisers and golf course supplies business expanded to the whole of Scotland and the North of England.

I am sure in his latter years he was a very proud man although he never showed it. It was a sad day for Dick when he lost his wife after a long illness five years ago. He retired about three years ago, living a quiet life at home until he was hospitalised, where he died on Friday, February 2, aged 84.

I am sure greenkeepers all over Scotland and England will feel that with Dick Aitken's passing another era in greenkeeping has passed. At this time in his family's grief our sincere condolences go to all his family especially to his son Richard, his daughter Grace and their families. I know I speak for many when I say "Goodbye old friend, until we meet on that big golf course in the sky".

Fundraising efforts pay off for Matthew

Matthew Fell, the son of Tiller's Turf's Tim Fell, who was the victim of a horrific brain disorder, is now well on the way to recovery thanks to the success of the £150,000 appeal to send him to Pittsburg for treatment.

Nine year-old Matthew was struck down with Trigeminal Neuralgia – previously virtually unknown in children – and went from being a normal fun loving boy to one unable to sit, stand, read and often eat or drink.

"We spent five weeks in Pittsburg and Matthew had two more operations to go with the one he had in the UK," explained his mum Lindsay.

"He is now doing really well. He's completely upright and is even playing tennis. He is also now going to school about half the time," she explained.

Matthew still can't touch his head without pain but there are high hopes that he will make a full recovery.

"Our target was £150,000 but thanks to the wonderful response of everyone including a great deal from the greenkeeping industry we raised £180,000," explained Lindsay. "We shall keep some of the money back until Matthew is fully recovered but the extra will go to Great Ormond Street Hospital to help children with the same condition.

"We have had many calls of support from greenkeepers and thank everyone for their support."

An eastern promise of floodlit golf

The current popular trend in the Far East would probably cause most greenkeepers to have nightmares – the potential for 24 hours play with wall-to-wall floodlighting!

Pictured here are golfers on the Gary Player-designed Sand River Golf Course in Shenzhen, southern China. The course was visited recently by British golf course consultant David Hemstock while he was carrying out a consultancy visit on another new floodlit course nearby, the Shenzhen Noble Merchant Golf Club.

The area is a buffer zone between inland China and the soon to be incorporated Hong Kong, and demand for golf is almost ferocious as the economy booms. The area is a strange mixture of high-tech new buildings and coolie workers, the Noble Merchant course having been almost hand-built apart from an ancient bulldozer.

Mission Hills Golf Course, scene of the recent inaugural Chinese international tournament, is a short drive away. Play was interrupted during the event by curious crowds wandering over fairways, and noisily snorting during shot-taking (a socially accepted Chinese trait).

HAYTER CHALLENGE

'Rest of World' team is named

The four home nation players who will represent the Rest of the World in the inaugural Hayter International Cup at West Lancashire Golf Club in September have been named.

They were selected on the strength of their performances in the Hayter Challenge Final, also at West Lincs, last year. They are Derek McJannet, of Sherwood Forest GC, a scratch man who will represent England; Alexander Reid, of Letham Grange GC, for Scotland, and Ian Buckley of Northop Country Park, for Wales, who both play off 7 and Brian Mulholland, of Lisburn GC, a 5 handicapper, who will represent Ireland.

They will join representatives from Sweden, Spain, Germany and Australia to compete as The Rest of the World against The Americas comprising the United States, Canada and Argentina. Everyone has confirmed their participation and the event looks certain to become a fixture on the international greenkeeping calendar. The event will be played every two years alternating between the United Kingdom and the United States.

The first Hayter International Cup will be played at West Lincs on September 16.

One the domestic front preparations are well advanced for the Hayter Challenge Final to be played at Fairhaven GC on September 18.

Much deliberation and debate within BIGGA Headquarters has seen a fine array of trophies chosen to present to the victors which should adorn mantelpieces for many years to come.
