"I felt the interview had gone well and was confident as I'd put a lot of effort into my portfolio and it has gone forward for a City and Guilds award and I was delighted when the letter arrived saying I was through."

Having arrived at the final he revelled in meeting his seven fellow finalists as well as the Toro Award Excellence in Greenkeeping finalists and the judges.

"It was nice because it was the first time I'd been in a situation where I'd socialised with greenkeepers and been in a room with so many elements of the golf industry and meeting people like Walter Woods who is right at the top of the profession."

"When the two runners-up were called my heart was thumping but, literally, a couple of seconds before Ken Richardson said my name I felt inside that I'd done it."

He is looking forward to his prize, a six week study course in Massachusetts and visits to the Toro headquarters in Minneapolis and California as well as the GCSAA Conference and Show in Orlando but feels that one of the most important elements is that his CV will now stand out from the crowd.

"Now all of a sudden it is Andy Pledger, Toro Student Greenkeeper of the Year."

He was seated at the same table as last year's winner Jonathan Cleland and before the night was over they had enjoyed a long chat on what the new incumbent would expect over the next 12 months.

"He said to throw myself into it as it is such a good opportunity and said that while in America people would be interested in me as I was a foreigner and they'd be keen to know how I'd got there," explained Andrew, who is looking forward to perhaps meeting up with Karen, who may well be in the States on business during his stay.

Andrew was promoted to First Assistant a month before the final but his ultimate goal is to become a Course Manager at a 36, 54 or even 72 hole complex.

"It would be then that the skills I learned in retail management would become more useful - managing people, managing budgets and dealing with the customers and the hierarchy within the golf club.

"American Golf is such a large company - you could liken the company to a supermarket chain - there are the opportunities for me and others to move within the group."

Listening to Andrew and Karen you sense that they are delighted that their gamble has paid off. Let's leave the last word to Karen.

"I'm just so thrilled because when Andrew made this career change it was such a big decision for us to make. We'd just come back from honeymoon when Andrew decided that he didn't want to carry on retail management...and many friends and family asked why he wanted to leave such a good job to start a new career in greenkeeping which is not particularly well paid.

"I just believe there is more to life than earning a lot of money and if you find a job which you have a passion for you should go for it."

And

When BIGGA's Education and Training Manager, Ken Richardson uttered the two words "Huw" and "Morgan" around 7.15pm on Tuesday, October 30, the man who had least expected to hear them at that particular moment was Huw Morgan, Course Manager of Wildernesse Golf Club, in Kent.

The reason? Huw was so sure that he wouldn't be named Toro Award for Excellence in Greenkeeping winner for 2001 he'd even made a bet with a colleague that one of his rivals would win. Many would have tried to hide the shock and attempt to look a little bit nonchalant but the 35 year-old Welshman wouldn't have even made the final if it had been the Toro Award for Excellence in Acting.

He looked absolutely dumbstruck and it was a great credit to him that he pulled himself together enough to make a more than passable winner's speech before settling down to enjoy his dinner and let the impact of his triumph begin to penetrate.

Talking the next morning in the foyer of the Crown Hotel, Boroughbridge, which had hosted the final interviews and the presentations, it was still only beginning to sink in.

The four finalists had been brought to the centre of the room at the appropriate moment for the big announcement to be made and Huw was thinking about the bet that he'd struck with Carden Park Course Manager Andy Campbell MG, who was at the finals as one of the regional Toro Student Greenkeeper of the Year judges.

"I was sure one of the other finalists was going to win so when we got to our feet all I was looking forward to taking £5 off Andy then when the words 'Huw Morgan' came out of Ken's mouth I virtually passed out. Surprised was not the word, I just could not believe it," admitted Huw, whose pessimism was born from the fact that he felt his course inspection, carried out in October and in the week after the club's course maintenance week, may count against him.

Asked what his next thought was and you get another honest answer.

"Nothing went through my head, just emptiness. It didn't sink in until I left the room after dinner and went into the bar for the first proper drink with the lads. Everything else was a blur."

The "lads" were the other three finalists Alan Purdie, Head Greenkeeper of Craig Golfing Society, who won the Scottish Final; David Murdoch MG, Course Manager of Liphook GC Huw's fellow finalist drawn from England and Wales, and Alan Strachan, Head Greenkeeper of Royal County Down GC, the Irish Champion.

"I don't know if this has happened before but the four of us sat together at the dinner rather than be spread out among the rest of the tables and that was genuine friendship. I do believe I've made three great new friends during the day and a half we were together for the final and we have promised to get together for a drink at Harrogate in January."

Huw is well aware of the doors such an Award can open and is sure that if he continues the upward path his career is taking he has the potential, and the ambition, to progress even further.

"Although I've won this Award I wouldn't class myself as being at the top of the profession, but it can be a massive step up for me in my career as long as I go with the flow and keep on doing what I've been doing for the last couple of years."

the winner is ...

Looking long term Huw has a vision of what he'd like to be doing in his career.

"I'm ambitious and anyone with a passion for the job would want to be standing on the 18th green at the presentation to a new Open Championship with the television camera on my face having prepared an Open venue. Long term I'd like to do that."

Huw does have experience of working on a links course having spent three years at Southerndown.

"I love working on links land, it's more of a hands-on craft job and it is drier. The wet course in the winter is every greenkeepers nightmare and you don't get that on a links. Southerndown was a lovely golf course but the only way to progress my career with regard to pay and conditions was to move to the sunny south east and that was only possible because the Wildernesse, at Sevenoaks, in Kent, had accommodation with it."

Huw had always wanted to be a greenkeeper, encouraged by his father who was Honorary Secretary of Pontardowe Golf Club in Swansea and a former Chairman of Green.

"I used to work at the golf club in the summer holidays and went straight to college from school to study greenkeeping," he explained.

It was through his father that he got his first big break in his career.

"I'd just finished college and got a job with Swansea City Council looking after a nine hole course on my own and my father was playing in a member guest day at Fairwood Park Golf Club. It had just been bought by an oil millionaire but all the staff had left when the farmer who'd owned it previously sold, so the guy was left with a golf course but no staff. My father told him about me and he said to go and see him the following day. He looked at my credentials and said 'The job's yours. You start tomorrow'," recalled Huw.

"I told him I'd have to hand my notice in first but he said if I couldn't start that Friday he'd give the job to someone else so I spoke to the council and managed to get out of my contract."

So at the age of 19 he was put in charge of an 18 hole golf course with two experienced men who he took on and the backing of his father, whose greenkeeping knowledge and passion for the game was invaluable.

The faith the oil millionaire in a raw 19 year-old was repaid in full as the course was awarded the Welsh Professional Championship - televised by BBC Wales - five years later, just before Huw moved to Southerndown.

"For a club like Fairwood to have a tournament like that was absolutely fantastic," said Huw.

Since moving to Wildernesse in 1993 Huw has assembled what he describes as a "fantastic team" who will benefit with a cheque for £250 as part of the prize. This recognises that success in the Toro competition is not down totally to the individual.

"This is a team Award as well as recognition of the money the club has spent recently on facilities."

Again displaying an honesty which you don't always find Huw said improvements to the course had slowed over the last four years.

"It is behind the scenes that has been the main focus of our effort, particularly in creating our new Course Maintenance Facility," said Huw, of the club and its members who have enthusiastically entered into the long term investment in excellence.

"The superb end product justifies all the earlier meetings and consultation necessary to push ahead with the project and I am only sorry that one of the prime movers, Kevan Dougal, 1996 Captain, sadly died before the final completion."

The Toro Award for Excellence in Greenkeeping is not the only national award Huw has won as he was also the 1987 Young Groundsman of the Year. So what is it that marks him out from the crowd to the extent that he wins two prestigious industry awards?

"I've always been a confident person and I'm lucky that I do tend to pick things up quickly. For example I completed my phase one and phase two in the same year at college and I picked up computing quickly after a two day course at Harrogate," said Huw, who admits to being a controversial character, when it comes to BIGGA.

"I know a lot of people on the Regional and National level have to be fairly sensible about how they approach new ideas and can't always go for radical change but we, down at Section level, like to fire ideas at the Association and say what we should be doing. Sometimes it can be construed that I'm firing a bit from the hip but it would be a pretty dull world if we said nothing and nothing moved forward. It's important that we keep bombarding the National Board and the staff with things as it keeps everyone on their toes."

He is looking forward to his trip to the States while he is sure the Club, particularly the treasurer will be delighted with the Toro Workman it will receive as part of the prize but he doesn't feel winning the Award will make a massive difference to him personally.

"The golf club are so good to us anyway. All the staff are treated with respect and I don't think the membership could be any more pleasant to us than they are already. I'd like to thank BIGGA, and Toro for the work and investment they put into staging this event," he concluded.
