

Welcome

RYDER CUP TIME AGAIN

Here we are in September already and the vast majority of the golf season is now behind us. We've had the Majors, although, as I write, the USPGA, on that brute of a course in Wisconsin, has only just begun.

Whistling Straits is over 7500 yards long. Two par-4s are reputed to be over 500 yards long and there are, count them, 1400 bunkers. Yes, that's 1400. We gather Bunker stats each year at The Open, and Royal Lytham & St Annes is the course with the most bunkers on the Open rota with a mere 197.

Collectively they trapped 1585 balls at The Open in 2001. The mind boggles about what might happen at Whistling Straits. If you divide 1400 by 18 you get an average of 78 bunkers per hole. How would you fancy being sent out to rake those at the beginning of a day? All in all it's a typically brutal Pete Dye golf course and one which, I for one, would feel I'd been sent to Hell if I had to play every day in life.

But while the Majors will be finished by the time you read this the most significant golfing event of the year is just around the corner. The Ryder Cup at Oakland Hills, Michigan, will again dominate the sports pages at a time when everyone has just come up for air after the Olympics.

The Superintendent at Oakland Hills is Steven Cook MG, CGCS. Many of you will know him from 2003 when he came over to Harrogate and I'm sure everyone on this side of the pond will wish him well at this particularly stressful and high profile time.

It is a tough old job being in charge of a Ryder Cup venue. I remember talking with the guys at the De Vere Belfry before the last Ryder Cup and they were saying how closely they had worked with Europe's Captain, Sam Torrance, on ensuring that the fairways were narrowed just about at the driving distance of the longer hitting Americans and the greens slowed to regular European pace. I know Bevan Tattersall recalls proudly being publicly acclaimed by Sam during the victory celebrations.

Giving the home side an advantage without appearing to be underhand or unfair is a delicate balancing act and I'm sure I can speak for all on this side of the Atlantic when I say we'll forgive Steven if he's set the course up in USA's favour... but only if we win!

Seriously the Ryder Cup is a truly great event. There hasn't been a dull one since I don't know when and the last one which was anything other than in the balance well into the Sunday was in 1981 at Walton Heath, when the Americans had what was generally recognised to be the greatest team ever assembled.

So good luck for this year's Cup match, Steven, and good luck to Europe.

SPORTSTURF DRAINAGE

The next in a popular series of LDCA Sportsturf Drainage Days will be held on Thursday October 28 at the Yorkshire Event Centre in Harrogate.

Now in its seventh year these Sportsturf Drainage Days, organised by the Land Drainage Contractors Association, are the UK and Europe's only specialist Sportsturf drainage events.

The days combines a morning of presentations from well known leading figures in the sportsturf world, with an afternoon of working demonstrations from sportsturf drainage contractors.

The morning presentations cover the principles of sportsturf drainage, drainage systems, installation methods, as well as turf establishment, aftercare and maintenance. The live demonstrations will show a wide variety of different types of equipment, installing piped drainage systems with porous backfill, secondary treatments of sand slitting and gravel banding, decompaction, renovation and overseeding of turf, together with static displays of turf related equipment and materials.

The purpose of the event is to raise awareness and highlight the importance of drainage in sportsturf, to provide information on drainage systems and techniques, and to demonstrate good current practice. BIGGA Members will also be eligible for BASIS points and BIGGA credits.

Further information can be found at the LDCA website, www.ldca.org, or Tel: 01327 263264.

TURF CONSULTANT IS REAPPOINTED

Leading independent turf consultant Robert Lycock has been appointed to provide agronomic support for a fourth consecutive year to the 11 Course Managers responsible for 16 golf courses at Marriott Hotel and Country Clubs throughout the UK.

In addition to providing technical advice and assistance on all aspects of turf and soil management, Robert's role also involves the provision of detailed soil and plant analyses as required by the individual Course Managers.

Announcing the reappointment David MacLaren director of golf operations for Marriot UK commented, "We have seen a sustained rise in the year round standard of all 16 Marriot golf courses over the past three years. Much of the improvement is down to Robert who has provided us with first-class technical and practical support, working in harmony with our course managers and their staff, all of whom do a superb job.

Kenny MacKay, Senior Course Manager said, "We regard Robert both as a partner and a great help to the individual course managers. His regular targeted assessments of course quality enable us to keep a close eye on progress year on year."

RANSOMES JACOBSEN DISTRIBUTION

Ransomes Jacobsen Ltd has confirmed that its distribution agreement with Scottish Grass Machinery Ltd (SGM), for the sale of Ransomes Jacobsen products in Scotland, will come to an end on November 7 this year.

An announcement will be made shortly regarding future arrangements for the sale of Ransomes Jacobsen products in Scotland, but SGM will remain an authorised distributor until 7 November.

LORD OF THE GREENS

Terry Lord, of Westerham Golf Club, has received a Highly Commended certificate from the City and Guilds in their Medals for Excellence scheme.

Terry, a mature student who studied at Plumpton College, commenced formal studying as he approached 50 years of age, as he wanted more commitment and a more challenging post. A passion for greenkeeping and personal recommendation meant he approached Plumpton College.

Plumpton College is set in a 600 hectare estate at the foot of the picturesque South Downs, near to Brighton and provides full and part time education and training in a wide range of land based subjects. The College has been awarded status as a Centre for Rural Business Education (CoVE).

Terry proved a model student, finishing his Level 2 course in just eight months, then he started his training in Level 3 Horticulture, specialising in Sportsturf.

He showed to be ideal at his subject, as he was awarded a prize as top student at the graduation ceremony.

Since Terry has been employed at Westerham GC he has been promoted to the post of Head Greenkeeper and he immediately set about vastly improving the course, which opened in 1977 and which now offers superb playing conditions.

EUROPEAN PESTICIDE REVIEW

The R&A have funded STRI to carry out a review of the main European pests and diseases and how they are controlled, in order to establish knowledge gaps to prioritise future research.

The availability of plant protection products in different EU states has also been investigated.

Dr Ruth Mann, Turfgrass Pathologist for STRI, is conducting the research.

The Pesticide Review, listing current protection products used on golf courses in different EU states, is now available on-line at www.stri.co.uk/currentresearch.

Details of the European Pests and Disease Review is available on-line from The R&A website, access via the 'Links' page or go to <https://www.bestcourseforgolf.org/>.

INDUSTRY AWARDS SCHEME LAUNCHED

Several Associations within the turfgrass industry have been working together to introduce a scheme which will give recognition to individuals and companies that have promoted and advanced the standing and image of the British turfgrass industry.

The BRITIR Awards - BRITish Turfgrass Industry Recognition Awards - will be accorded to those who have demonstrated a dedication to and support of the Industry, beyond the parameters of their normal work-related duties and responsibilities. It will be particularly relevant where their talents have significantly raised the standards and perceptions of the British Turfgrass Industry.

Presently, the Institute of Groundsmanship, British Association of Golf Course Constructors, the British Turf and Landscape Irrigation Association, the Turfgrass Growers Association, the British Rootzone and Topdressing Manufacturer's Association and the National Turfgrass Foundation have joined in the initiative and it is hoped that others will also wish to participate.

The BRITIR Awards Reception and Gala Evening will be held at the Southport Floral Hall, in December, during which a variety of trophies will be presented to the winners of the awards.

While the purpose of the evening is to recognise the contribution to our industry by the nominees, the event will have a fun element with a dinner and entertainment.

Presentations will be given in three categories: The Media Awards will consist of two sub-categories, the Technical Article Award which goes to the author of the best technical article in a UK printed or electronic magazine. The Non-Technical Article Award, which is received by the author of the best non-technical article in a UK printed or electronic magazine

The Corporate Awards. The Innovation of the Year Award is given to the company or Association who produces the most innovative introduction of the year. The Corporate Care Award is awarded to a company that excels in promoting the British Turfgrass Industry, its image, education, and opportunities.

The Individual Awards. The Celebrity of the Year goes to an individual who has been outstanding in promoting the turfgrass industry, professionalism, education, etc., and is an example to his/her peers and a role model for young people entering the industry. The International Celebrity Award is presented to an individual or individuals from outside the UK who have unselfishly assisted the development of the British Turfgrass Industry. Finally, the Industry Achievement Award is received by the individuals who have unceasingly dedicated themselves to the further development of the British Turfgrass Industry.

REASEHEATH HITS THE SPOT

The Reaseheath Sports Turf Machinery Show has received wholehearted praise from its exhibitors, who were impressed by its interactive formula and voted that the Show should become a permanent event in the turf professionals' calendar.

The demonstrative event, held in the realistic setting of Reaseheath College in Nantwich, Cheshire, attracted 57 national manufacturers and suppliers with several choosing the venue as a national launch pad for new machinery.

This year's show was almost three times as successful as the 2003 inaugural event, with demand for demonstration areas exceeding expectations. Millions of pounds worth of cutting edge equipment was demonstrated in the real working environment of the college's varied sports turf facilities, attracting potential buyers from across the North West, Wales and the Midlands.

National exhibitors included Toro, Ransomes Jacobsen, Sisis, Fleet line marker, BLEC and many others.

Research and training bodies included the British and International Golf Greenkeepers Association (BIGGA), the National Turfgrass Foundation, Institute of Groundsmanship (IOG), BALI, The NPTC and the Sports Turf Research Institute (STRI).

Event team member Ian Benison, a Reaseheath horticulture programme leader said: "We felt we could fill a void in the industry by offering a 'hands-on' opportunity for companies to display their equipment or materials in a real working environment, and judging from the positive comments we have been proved right.

"Feedback from exhibitors was that they had enjoyed a friendly event which had attracted quality buyers. Many said that they had developed positive contacts and new links.

"We intend to improve the show still further next year, ensuring it offers even better value to those attending. The show is still very much in its infancy and we are confident we can build on it."

THE HARRY DIAMOND QUAICH

The Harry Diamond Memorial Quaich was played over Belleisle Golf Course on Sunday July 11.

This year the Quaich clashed with the Open at Troon and the Scottish Open at Loch Lomond. Harry would have been very proud to know this – being up there with the best.

Unfortunately, there were no Greenkeepers taking part in his competition. This was due to the fact that a good number of the Ayrshire courses were involved with the qualifying for the Open. Greenkeepers, being what they are, assisting "frae a' the airts o' Ayrshire", hence the exceptionally demanding week for the Ayrshire lads, where their personal pleasures were put aside to assist in these great events.

The players entering the Quaich were down from last year, 104 turned out. The numbers in no way deterred the enthusiasm of the golfers who, as usual were of all ages, were from courses all over Ayrshire. It was a pleasure to see them all standing in teams of 4 on their respected tees awaiting the shotgun start to the Stableford Competition.

The weather all over Scotland had not been very good but at Belleisle the sun was shining on a well presented course thanks to the special efforts of Billy Fulton and his Greenkeeping staff.

Everyone said what a fine day it was, quite a change from the usual slogging medals and serious competitions they normal take part in.

The prizes were presented by Harry's brothers Hugh and Neil, and Jessie, Harry's wife, who had the pleasure of handing the Quaich to the winning team of Donald Kemp, Andrew Thomson, Alison Thorburn and Ronnie Penman.

The organising committee, including family members, would like to thank South Ayrshire Council for allowing the course to be used for Harry's Quaich, also to all the sponsors, and a special thanks to Westin Turnberry Resort for their continued support.

FORTY NOT OUT

Rob Mayers, Production Director of Bernhard, has been presented with a token of appreciation to celebrate 40 years of service to the company.

Rob joined the company, then called Atterton and Ellis, on August 4 1964 from school as an apprentice in general engineering under the guidance of Foreman Jim Chapman and Directors Jeff & Ken Boardman.

Rob's major duties were focused on the development of both lawnmowers and grinders. At this point this was only a small part of the business and he concentrated on lathe work, pipe work, general maintenance.

His work in the fitting shop was described as excellent, and he quickly moved over to the grinder side of the business as it developed.

Rob took an active part in production and development, and thus became instrumental in the increase in sales.

Rob, married with two children, has been with the company his entire working life and he is planning to continue his hard work as Production Director for years to come.
