ROWAN

Rowan is an attractive tree for the golf course, with toothed leaves that become rounded at their base. Flowers are creamy white in colour and form clusters, which later become bright red berries.

The tree's bark is smooth, becoming networked by thin, scale like ridges and is silver grey in colour. The Rowan can reach 15 metres in height and is very common throughout the UK.

It is very hardy and can withstand both acidic and alkaline soil types, dry soils and shallow soils, including sands, gravels and stony places. The Rowan is also very tolerant of exposure.
