The evening educational speaker was Mr. William J. Lunn. His topic was labor laws and health and safety. Many questions were asked. Truly most interesting.

Today, in many communities, with spraying curtailed, control of Dutch elm disease is limited to removal of diseased and dead elms. Annually Illinois cities and villages appropriate large sums for control of Dutch elm disease; some Chicago suburbs spending upwards of $200,000.00. Although some communities do an outstanding job, there are, however, others where "control" of Dutch elm disease provide a "golden" opportunity for tree racketeers and dishonest public officials. Based on reliable reports and newspaper accounts, irrate taxpayer groups are now investigating some "shady" public Dutch elm disease programs.
