OUR ENDANGERED WILDLIFE

An estimated 4,500 geese died of lead shot poisoning earlier this year when shot-saturated lake bottoms on the Eastern Shore of Maryland were exposed near their wintering grounds. Lead shot poisoning of waterfowl has been documented for more than a century. It is estimated that 6,000 tons (over 30 billion pellets) of lead shot are discharged each year over waterfowl habitat; and that 2-3 million waterfowl dies of lead shot poisoning each year in the United States.
