Field Day Pictures

5. This is a "Rubber Duck" spray wagon with a 60-foot boom.

6. Another "Rubber Duck" with the seed disc behind. The tank would hold the charcoal slurry to be sprayed over the seeded rows.

7. Tony Meyer and Walter Fuchs, Jr. in front of a John Deere Turbo 7720 seed harvester on one of the growers' farms.

8. A crop spraying plane that sprays 5 gallons per acre and can do 40 acres per load. The plane has a 275-gallon capacity.

9. Standing in a field of tall fescue that will be harvested this year.

10. Tony and Walter looking a little bored — don't know why with Pam standing nearby.

12. Tony and Walter checking a newly sprigged field of Penn-cross. This field won't be harvested until 1988.

11. Your Editor checking Pennlu in a field of Penncross that will be harvested this year. You can spot Pennlu; being a darker color, it stands out. It is planted every third row, as you can see as you look across the field.

13. A field that was just swathed in preparation for seed harvest. The field is swathed first and left to dry for "x" number of days, depending upon the humidity and sunlight. Then the large harvesting machines go up and down the swathed rows picking off the seed.
