

The CDGA Dedicates Midwest Golf House

On Sunday, June 3, the Chicago District Golf Association (CDGA) hosted more than 200 people at the dedication and grand opening of the Midwest Golf House Complex at Cog Hill. Designed to unite the CDGA and its allied associations under one roof, Midwest Golf House is the platform from which the CDGA will fulfill its charitable mission through the CDGA Foundation's "Sunshine Through Golf" programs.

Although the afternoon was overcast, even blustery, the atmosphere was warm and jovial as attendees toured the Complex. As one of the first organizations to join Midwest Golf House, the MAGCS had a strong presence at the dedication; our contingent seemed particularly delighted with Dr. Randy Kane's greenhouse and laboratory. In the CDGA's old, cramped quarters in Oak Brook,

Dr. Kane's cultures shared refrigerator space with brown-bag lunches.
