

morning weather for a blood meal.

Barrier treatments involve spraying a low-volume mist to kill adult mosquitoes where they harbor. "Barrier treatments are also important to keep the staff safe," notes Davis. "When the crew is tending to wooded areas, they're likely to get bitten from the mosquitoes hiding there in the heat of the day."

Barrier treatments are often the "ounce of prevention" that prevents complaints at the 19th hole.

ATV Treatment for Overall Enjoyment

A beautiful day on a challenging course sounds like the perfect way to spend a morning. But the whole experience can be ruined by something no bigger than a pencil eraser. If a golfer spends his entire day on the links swatting and scratching, the outing becomes a disaster, for the player as well as his score. When mosquitoes get to such a population that they're annoying to golfers all over the course, ATV spraying can reduce the mosquito density and distribution on the entire grounds. ATV spraying involves an ultra-low-volume mist distributed by machines mounted to all-terrain vehicles, which can quickly and efficiently distribute mosquito-control products without damaging the course.

"You spend the whole year doing everything you can to make the course challenging, beautiful and a great experience for guests," says Dave O'Hara, vice president and grounds and greens chairman at Elgin Country Club. "And there's nothing worse than having them be miserable when mosquitoes get unbearable. ATV treatments let you control when you need to really cut down on mosquitoes throughout the course."

Mosquito Control as Profit Center

Offering a mosquito-control treatment as part of weddings, parties and other special event contracts can create a new profit center for the facility. What bride wants to throw her bouquet under a tent housing hungry mosquitoes? Or worse, when no one enjoys their experience at membership recruiting nights, compromising future revenues.

"For special events like our Ravinia nights, mosquito control is key," comments O'Hara. "Special events are often held at dusk in summer—when mosquitoes are out in force. We want to show off our course at night, and to do that, it has to be a positive experience, not one where they're being bitten right and left."

Many courses offer mosquito-control treatments as part of special event rental packages—a nominal fee to treat the area immediately prior to weddings, picnics, etc. This can also be a modest source of income for the course with a small service fee included.

Getting Started with a Mosquito-Control Program

While a full integrated pest management program featuring larviciding and adult control can certainly reduce the risks of West Nile virus for golfers, crew and guests, small inroads can be made to tackle the challenge of mosquitoes without breaking the operations budget wide open.

Considering larvicide for areas like water hazards, slow-draining areas, parking lot catchbasins and marshlands with heavy vegetation or any area where water may stand stagnant for more than four days is an effective method of source reduction, stopping mosquitoes before they grow to adulthood.

Working with a mosquito professional can help you establish a plan of action to reduce mosquitoes throughout the year, making a round of golf on your course a more enjoyable—and safer—experience.

Local, not Regional, Chapters Best for Superintendents

If you had a chance to peruse the February issue of Golf Course News, you may have read an article by Jim McLoughlin concerning what local chapters are not providing and a suggestion that the establishment of regional chapters would be of greater benefit to us.

Our Midwest chapter has been very progressive and shown a great deal of advancement during the last few years. Of course, there is always room for improvement, but what has already taken place has been of great value and substance. We have a number of educational opportunities available to each of us at the chapter level, but it is up to each individual to take advantage of these learning opportunities.

In his article, Jim suggests a restructuring of the local chapters by combining them into larger regional chapters (similar to what has been done by the golf professionals). Here are my thoughts on this type of reorganization.

Unlike the case with golf professionals, our business varies significantly from area to area. We are faced with different types of landscapes, climates, soils, insects, etc., that can vary drastically from club to club, sometimes even within the jurisdiction of one local chapter. Golf professionals, on the other hand, deal with a different type of arrangement. Golf equipment, including balls, clubs, clothing, etc., is sold in pro shops across the country and inventory varies little from shop to shop. Styles change from year to year, but usually on a nationwide basis, therefore regional chapters work well for this type of situation. We, on the other hand, have a myriad of different fertilizers, seeds, fungicides, herbicides, etc. to choose from. Due to the fact that situations vary not only from day to day but also from course to course, the appropriate products for each case are often quite dissimilar. What works on one course will not necessarily work the best on another. Not only do particular situations occur from course to course, they can change drastically from year to year.

For superintendents, networking within local chapters can better meet the needs of local clubs. This is due to the general fact that they are likely to be somewhat familiar with one another's criteria and conditions. However, what works well for a club in one area may be harmful to one in an area that is 10, 20 or 100 miles away. In my opinion, dissolving local chapters, by creating larger regional chapters, would not be beneficial to most clubs.

Also, our Golf Industry Show does a terrific job of promoting education. Members have the opportunity to network and can attend quality programs that are valuable to our profession. These programs are selected to benefit different geographies and different circumstances and all are accessible while spending a few days at the conference. If you have ever attended any of Jim McLoughlin's classes, he encourages you to set aside monies for your educational needs. He suggests that you pay your own way if your club will not sponsor you to attend one of the larger conferences. I agree with Jim, and you will find that investing in yourself is money well spent.

There are many ways to educate ourselves. Besides attending the national conference and local chapter meetings, we can do a few things ourselves that will improve our image around our own clubs. First, to be treated like a professional, we need to act the part of a professional. That means a well-groomed look, hair trimmed, shaven, a welcoming smile on our faces, a good attitude and clean attire. It is a good idea to keep a spare pair of shoes and change of clothes around in case a meeting is called on short notice (and please, hats should not be worn during any meeting).

The most important item mentioned in Mr. McLoughlin's article is the need to set personal goals. This should include a list of needs and wants. You are the judge of how much effort you put into improving your position. You may want to include in your list what your desire is for your next position, and what you need to do to make yourself more desirable for this position. Your local chapter can help you with some of the steps you identify, but most are going to be up to you as an individual.

In case you were wondering why you haven't seen Dave Braasch (Glen Erin Golf Club) around lately, fear not. Dave assures us that everything is business as usual in Janesville, and that really nothing is happening at all.

Except for the engagement to his honey Jayme. And of course his bachelor party/golf outing in early April at Hughes Creek G.C. (Darin Ayres). And his wedding to Jayme on April 23 (which included an early-morning round of golf at Glen Erin in subfreezing conditions). Then there was that pesky baby being born on May 13; Logan David Braasch entered the world at 4 lb., 2 oz. and 18 inches long, and everyone is doing great. Other than that, everything is just ho-hum in the lives of Dave and Jayme Braasch. Congratulations, Braasches! In the next issue: Logan gets married and Dave and Jayme become grandparents.

If you haven't signed up yet, you might still have time to enjoy one of the greatest events MAGCS holds during the year: the annual Kane County Cougars outing. The family-oriented evening includes a reserved picnic area in the right-field bleachers featuring kids' games, great food and plenty of beverages. This year, the winners of the four MAGCS scholarships—the MAGCS, the George Minnis, the John Buck and the Paul Burdett—have been invited to attend and will be recognized for their stellar achievements. After the game, a fireworks show to rival Epcot's (perhaps I exaggerate, but only a wee bit) will be followed by the customary running of the bases by all the kids and kids-at-heart in attendance. It's really a great way for us to thank our families for their patience throughout our long seasons, and a very inexpensive way to do it. Hope to see you there!

Belated congratulations to Sarah and Eric Nadler (Nadler Golf Car Sales) on the March 29th birth of their son, Caden William Nadler, who way back then weighed 5 lb., 10 oz. and was a mere 18-3/4" long. They do grow fast, don't they?

Eric and Sarah Nadler with new son, Caden.

Breaking ground: The new Whitetail Ridge Golf Course recently began construction outside of Yorkville, IL, and is slated to open for play in the summer of 2007. Martin Design Partnership (Greg Martin) designed the 6,700-yard, par-71 layout on Route 126 to feature a front nine with a distinctive wetlands flavor and a back nine that will climb into the oak-hickory woodlands for a more parkland-style challenge. The same group that brought us Blackberry Oaks Golf Course is the developer of Whitetail Ridge, and Hans Hoppman has been asked to consult on the project during its construction.

The May-June 2005 issue of Stewardship News, a publication of Audubon International, ran a story titled "Still on Top" about the first 10 golf courses to achieve certification in the Audubon Cooperative Sanctuary Program for Golf Courses (ACSP) back in 1993. So what's the big deal about that? Only that four of the first 10 were from right here in the Chicagoland area, which is still a neat little feather in our environmental caps. By the way—it was St. Charles C.C. (2nd), Aurora C.C. (4th), Village Links of Glen Ellyn (7th) and Cantigny G.C. (8th). Currently, some 535 golf courses are certified in the ACSP worldwide.

For a really comprehensive look at the history of one of our area's finest and most revered clubs, check out the June issue of Superintendent and its story on page 26 titled "Olympia Fields Forever" by Bob Labbanace. The article takes its readers on a ride through the entire history of the club and its greenkeepers from 1913, when Jim Foulis, Jr. was hired as pro, superintendent and foreman, through the present with Tom Gray, CGCS at the helm. Great read for those interested in the colorful history of golf in Chicagoland.

On May 19, the SuperNEWS Bunker Boot Camp demonstration took place at Cog Hill Golf & Country Club, attracting about 30 attendees and featuring five noted speakers including Bradley Klein, Craig Schreiner (course architect), Frank Jemsek, Tom Lively, CGCS and Dr. Randy Kane. Funny thing about this event—if you were a commercial member who happened to sell, amongst other things, sand, your money was not wanted (nor was your presence, for that matter). Turns out a certain Class E member who not only sells bunker sand, but whose company actually donated sand for the event, was booted from boot camp by the SuperNEWS folks upon arriving. Tough crowd, those Bunker Boot Camp drill sergeant guys. Now drop and give me 50.

We would like to pass along our sincerest condolences to the family and friends of Peter Leuzinger, whose father passed away in May.

Our sympathies to Mark and Holly Gilmour on the sudden passing of their brother Michael on June 10.

And to Jim McNair, our thoughts and prayers go out for the loss of his mother, May McNair, on June 11.

The Midwest lost one of its great old friends on June 5. Kenneth Zanzig, a longtime superintendent at several courses including Walnut Hills, Willow Run, Palos Country Club, Old Oak and Green Garden, and monthly contributor of his own poetry to these very pages throughout the '70s and '80s, passed away from respiratory illness related to Parkinson's disease last month. Mr. Zanzig, whose poems were anticipated each month in the Bull Sheet, was remembered by his close friend Dudley Smith as a "belligerent, stubborn German" who was a tireless worker and who loved his life as a golf course superintendent. Our deepest sympathies to the family and all the many friends of Ken Zanzig, and may they (and we) all enjoy this example of his many contributions to our Association's newsletter:

The Other Side of the Coin

How great to go to work in one's shirtsleeves,
Tan in the warmth of the Summer Sun.
Cool beneath a parasol of tree leaves,
Join in with the Golfers, have fun.
How wonderful to work on a Golf Course,
To commune with Nature first hand.
While at times it affords quite a challenge,
It's the best darn job in this land.

Superintendently,
Kenneth R. Zanzig

Ivanhoe Hosts Huge Turnout for Magnificent MAGCS/ITF Combined Spring Golf Day

The May monthly meeting was the gala MAGCS/ITF Spring Golf Day, and this year's host was Tom Prichard and the beautiful Ivanhoe Club in Ivanhoe, IL. The venue could not have suited this event better, with three distinct and recently-renovated nines—the Forest, the Marsh and the Prairie—to test participants' skills. The only downside was that we couldn't play all 27 perfectly manicured holes. The game for the day was based on a quota scoring system that the boys from NASA came up with that took two paragraphs to explain (translation: just tell me if I won at the end). The side game was the Regional Team Tournament, pitting teams from the Metro North, Metro South, Metro West and Greater Illini against each other.

Picture-perfect weather blessed this day and a huge turnout of nearly 160 players. After golf, the party moved into the lavish clubhouse for a fine spread of food and drink, along with the business portion of the day including recognition of those responsible for making the event a success and awarding of prizes. ITF president Don Altman, CGCS (Forest Hills C.C.) thanked our gracious host Tom Prichard and the entire staff at Ivanhoe for their superior service, as well as Nels J. Johnson Tree

Experts for the complimentary drink tickets and Central Sod Farms for the Cubs tickets that were auctioned for research dollars ($175 was the winning bid by Bob Lohmann of Lohmann Golf Designs, Inc.—thank you, Bob!). Tom Prichard followed by diverting all accolades he received to his assistant Justin VanLanduit, who he said was the person responsible for the great course conditions. Class E Advisory Committee chairperson Sharon Riesenbeck took the stage to conduct the raffles, which featured two Grey Goose gift packages and a golf bag. Winners of the Grey Goose were Matt Bourne and Doug Myslinski, while Dave Groelle took home the golf bag. By the way, look for more of those Grey Goose prizes at future MAGCS events, and thank Sharon's husband Mike Riesenbeck for arranging them. Proximity winners were Scott Shaul on the Marsh, Don Cross on the Prairie and Kerry Anderson on the Forest. The team winners were: first place—Ed Fischer, Tim Davis, Randy Wahler and Tommy Robinson by "a lot" with 115; second place—Bruce Schweiger, Don Altman, Tim Keating and Ernie Kaplan with 98; and third place—Rick Jacobson, Doug Myslinski, Trey Kemp and Jay Hilgenberg with 87. Kudos to the bottom of the barrel winners with a -4 (almost impossible to do): Kevin DeRoo, Eddie Braunsky, Jim Styka and Howie Shuck.

An event of this magnitude takes countless hours of hard work behind the scenes by so many people that it is difficult to name them all, but we do thank each and every volunteer who donated their time and effort toward the day's success. Special thanks go to our betting-hole volunteers Marsha Traves, Patti Thorson, Darin Habenicht, Sharon Riesenbeck, Danna Eberly and Kelly Schroeder; and of course to our sponsors for the day, without whom all this would not have happened:

No June (Meeting) Swoon: Phillips Park in Splendid Form for Class C, Dom Grotti Championships

The June MAGCS monthly meeting was held on a steamy, sultry, August-like day at the Phillips Park Golf Course in Aurora, IL with Todd Schmitz serving as our host superintendent. Usually when one volunteers his course for a June meeting, it's assumed that summer's stressful days still lie ahead and that preparing the course for one's peers will be a walk in the park, so to speak. NOT. Mother Nature's havoc, with drought and unseasonably hot, humid conditions, made Todd's job much more difficult than expected, but he and his staff really rose to the occasion! The course was in splendid shape, with greens rolling quick and true, fairways fast and firm, and fescue pristine and . . . grabby. And the kudos don't stop at Todd and his staff, but extend to PGA professional Jeff Schmidt and the pro shop folks, and everyone at Phillips Park who helped make the day so great.

The day began with a highly informative education session given by Kathy O'Connell, the area director for OSHA, who focused on safety and the inspection process OSHA employs at facilities such as ours. After the program, attendees hit the links to compete for both the Class C Championship and the Dom Grotti (Superintendent-Assistant) Championship. As previously noted, the day was a scorcher that featured a brief shower to cool us off at about the midway point, and the course held up to our torturous abuse with aplomb. Following the golf, dinner took the form of a barbecue feast of chicken and pork and all the fixings while the day's winners were announced and recognized for their accomplishments.

This year's Dom Grotti champions are Dave Drendel and Benjamin Keinhofer of Mistwood Golf Club with a 137, edging out runners-up Paul Bastron and Brad Roose of Glen Flora Country Club with 138. The winners of the Class C Championship were Rodney Reich of Bryn Mawr Country Club (net division) with a 70, topping Bull Valley's Rob Nixon with 72. Gross winner was Brad Roose with a 79, just one stroke better than Ronnie Newman of the Highlands of Elgin. The other big winners of the day were Kurt Sams, CGCS of Idlewild C.C., who won the raffle for the Grey Goose gift pack; Mark Bobb of Barrington Hills C.C. for his closest-to-the-pin on no. 10; and Dave Radaj, CGCS of Green Acres C.C. for his longest drive on no. 3. The one "betting hole" was run by the J.W. Turf sisters Kelli Zopfi and Danna Eberly, who raised $750 for the John Buck Scholarship Fund by selling raffle tickets for a chance to win a Deere mini-gator. Can't wait to drive that bad boy home . . .

MAGCS thanks Todd Schmitz, Jeff Schmidt and everyone at Phillips Park and the City of Aurora, along with our day's sponsors Burris Equipment Company, Chicagoland Turf, Hydrologic, J. W. Turf, Nadler Golf Car Sales, Palatine Oil Company and Turf Professionals Equipment Company, without whose generosity the event could not have taken place in such fine style. See you all this month at Elfstrom Field!
