

Goldie to keep an eye out for us in Tallahassee. It is why you need to be an informed member of the electorate, and it is why you need to send a letter to your representative when proposed legislation isn't backed up by facts.

This column also says to me that laws with compliance, regulatory and penalty language should be written completely before they are passed in concept. That way the "well intentioned" legislators can be held accountable for the full impact of the law, and not leave the voters to the mercy of regulation-writing, nameless bureaucrats

Joel,

I have been reading The Florida Green magazine for the last nine months, over three issues. The articles, pictures and editorial commentary by yourself and others are educational, very informative and amusing. I was also very gratified The Florida Green receives the continued and much-deserved accolades as noted by GCSSA. Isn't it marvelous to be the best in your field?

Again, kudos to all who work with you to help distribute such an outstanding publication for our industry.

Thanks again for publishing the article written on high technology lubrications.

I just can't say enough about how impressed I am with the people who organize and support the Envirotron Classic. The tournament is wonderful indication of the great people we have working in Florida's turfglass industry. Without industry support we won't grow.

Researchers utilizing the Envirotron are eternally grateful to the Seven Rivers Golf Course Superintendent's Chapter. They had the vision to begin this hugely successful tournament that provides money to purchase equipment for research use today and years to come.

As for supporters, Ron Kitchen Sr. and Terry LaGree of Barbaron, Inc. have been two of the finest people I have ever had the pleasure to worked with. I am grateful for their help in building the Envirogreen and their continued support for the Envirotron through their generous donation to the Envirotron Classic.

Attending the Envirotron Classic to visit with superintendents and other individuals in the turf industry, while playing on one of Florida's most beautiful golf courses is truly a highlight of my year.
