RMA HIRES ADAMS

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Becky Adams is the new director of retail at Resort Management of America (RMA), a company specializing in the operation and management of golf courses and resorts.

She will manage golf shops for Stonecreek, The Golf Club, and the Karsten Golf Course at Arizona State University. She also will coordinate retail responsibilities at other RMA projects.

Henry DeLozier, RMA president, believes hiring a director of retail to oversee more than one facility is a trend of the future. "The economic base for retail merchandising in the golf shop industry is tremendous. Adams has been a leader," he said.

Women's issues a major concern

Experts warn golf industry of shortcomings in attracting ladies

By Mark Leslie

Shifts in the workforce will "dramatically" increase the spending power of women, but the golf industry must address some major shortcomings in order to attract this huge number of potential clients, according to various experts.

Ladies Professional Golf Association President Judy Dickinson, LPGATeaching Division Director of Education Betsy Clark, professional Shirley Englehorn, Market Facts Inc. Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Verne Churchill and others agreed at Golf Summit 90 that the industry has failed to effectively draw women into the sport.

Women could bring tens of millions of dollars into golf courses' pockets if some crucial needs are met, the experts told the 600 attendees at the Palm Springs, Calif., event.

Speaking on a panel on women's golf, Dickinson said: "The U.S. is about to undergo a dramatic shift in the composition and quality of its workforce... The prediction is that two-thirds of the workforce will be women starting or returning to work. It is also projected that only 9.3 percent of all new workers will be male, white, non-Hispanic and U.S.-born men from whom traditionally nearly all our top corporate managers have sprung."

She said more women will be moving up the corporate ladder. "Consequently, we believe women will not only have a larger portion of the economic pie and increased spending power, but will also have a greater political influence."

Churchill, whose firm surveyed 1,300 women golfers for the LPGA, found that though women play only 18 percent of the total rounds in the country, frequent women golfers play more, travel more and spend more than frequent male golfers.

The shortfall, he said, is that while women constitute about 40 percent of all new golfers each year, three of four new female starters have failed to stay in the sport. Whereas 4 million women have taken up golf in the last five years, he said, the net growth has been only 1.4 million because so many have dropped it.

"For the good of the game and the industry, it's important to find out why and what we can do," Churchill said.

He and other panel members had their own suggestions on how to attack the problem.

Churchill recommended:

- Helping women improve their performance. "Three of five are dissatisfied with their game

Public course officials nationwide cited for promotional programs

JUPITER, Fla. — Public golf courses have "risen to the challenge" of promoting golf, and the National Golf Foundation has recognized 50 facilities and municipalities for those efforts.

Each facility will receive the NGF's Public Golf Achievement Award for 1990, created last year to underscore the importance of public golf to the growth and enjoyment of the game in America. Upwards of 70 percent of all rounds played are at public facilities.

NGF President and Chief Executive Officer Joseph F. Beditz said the "impetus for the new awards program has been the reports which the foundation receives each year on how public courses are developing new and imaginative ways to promote play."

The NGF launched its awards program last June by asking member facilities to share their best promotional and operational programs.

"The submittals show that public courses have indeed risen to the challenge," Beditz said. "The reflect pride in their accomplishments and the NGF is proud to recognize them."
