

Wild shots cause neighbor's consternation

Stray balls frighten family, which suggests moving 12th hole

JENKS, Okla. — James A. Lewis collects stray golf balls — 235 sprayed shots that have landed in his yard since South Lakes Golf Course opened two years ago.

He's also collected $929 from Tulsa County, which operates the course, to cover damage caused by golfers.

Lewis and wife Stella live about 100 feet from the 12th green, the intended target of so many errant swings. He said his windows have been shattered, that friends and family are afraid to use his driveway, back yard or $18,000 pool and deck because of the flying missiles.

This fear doesn't provide the best comfort zone for the Lewises, who have been remodeling the house for retirement next year. The county has tried to safeguard the Lewises by erecting a 43-foot-tall net fence 300 feet long as protection against the right-hand hookers and left-hand slicers. Results are in dispute.

The Parks and Recreation Department also shortened the par-5 hole to reduce its difficulty, repositioned the tee, and planted trees to protect the Lewises' property. Nothing seems to have worked.

Lewis favors eliminating the hole. The county contends it would cost more than $30,000 to reroute the course and move the green. The estimate does not include landscaping and drainage expenses.

The grass may not be greener in Lewis' backyard than on the 12th fairway, but he'll have trouble selling that idea to a wayward links enthusiast.

N.C.'s Glassy Mountain site of 2,100-acre development

TRYON, N.C. — Ground has been broken for a 2,100-acre resort development, The Cliffs at Glassy, which will feature an 18-hole golf course expected to be completed next year.

Embracing 900 homes, a 44-room inn and an amphitheater, the development will cost about $200 million.

Tom Jackson has designed the course. He was associated with Robert Trent Jones and George W.

Cobb before starting his own firm in 1961. Since then, he has designed 60 courses.

Fourteen holes are along the ridge line of Glassy Mountain, affording views of Table Rock, Paris Mountain and Kings Mountain. Construction of a clubhouse and pro shop is to begin this year.

The property is entered on a 3 1/2-mile road that starts at U.S. 11 and climbs to the 3,000-foot peak of the mountain.

City may annex land to ease way for golf course

NORTH SALT LAKE, Utah — A resolution calling for annexation of 464 acres of the Cannon property into the city, paving the way for a new golf course, has been adopted unanimously by the City Council.

"It's going to be great for the city," said Mayor D. W. Simmons. He saw it as a major step toward development of a first-class, 18-hole city golf course.

Bountiful City has indicated support for the course and is interested in having streets such as Bountiful Boulevard extended in connection with the golf course project.

$75M resort and course draws closer to approval

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — A $75-million resort hotel and golf course in northwest Bexar County is a step nearer fruition.

The City Planning Commission has approved a non-annexation agreement for the property. Final action rests with the City Council.

In addition to an 18-hole golf course and the 400-room resort destination hotel, the project envisions hiking and jogging trails, 12 cottage-style units and 30,000 square feet of meeting space.

Kim Richards of Tucson, representing the Greystone Joint Venture development firm, said the project, known as Woodland Hills, would be innovative and "showcase the environment."
