One more look back at 1993, the year in golf...

he only thing more irksome than a New Year's Day hangover is the glut of year-end retrospectives that clutter newspapers and magazines from December of the closing year straight through to June of the new one. But they're hard to avoid — just like the hangover.

I read these years in review. In fact, I read them all with relish. Polls, surveys, Top Ten lists, best of this, worst of that. I love 'em.

Innovations in service and management at Public Golf ust as greens fees drive profits at a golf course, so does innovative management and marketing steer the vehicle. Ideas that fit this scenario overflowed at Golf Course News' recent Public Golf '93 conference in Charleston, S.C.

From American Golf Co. Vice President Kenneth James' wisdom in filling tee times to National Golf Course Owners Association

President Vince Alfonso Jr.'s admonitions to give to the community, attendees from Florida to Hawaii learned a spate of money-making ideas.

We share a fraction of them here, suggesting, as Lansbrook Golf Club General Manager Gregg Gagliardi did: "Every area has ideas that work. You have to find your own promotional opportunities within your market. If you're going to make money, you've got to push and drive business. Flexibility in your operations is a must. Service is number one."

One of my lasting impressions from that first show in Anaheim was how personable people are in this industry. Along with the new leaders at GCSAA, a slew of personalities has emerged in the golf world over the past five years. Here's my list, in no particular order:

scheduled for Nov. 10-11, 1994, in Orlando, Fla. In addition to a management program, Golf Course Expo will offer educational programs in agronomy and development. HAVES, HAVE NOTS

One theme that rang out at Public Golf '93 was that golf course operators have not because they ask not.

To better serve the golf course industry, Golf Course News has expanded the annual Public Golf conference into a trade show and three-tracked educational symposium for superintendents, owners, managers and developers. It's called Golf Course Expo, and it's "People wonder how we got all this help. It's because we asked," said Elaine Fitzgerald of Fitzgerald Promotions, Inc. near Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. Not only has Fitzgerald obtained hundreds of thousands of dollars in free advertising for two golf courses by tying them into promotions of area hotels, she has gotten major mileage by placing brochures in visitors bureaus and chambers of commerce - at little or no cost.

Bobby Vaughn, president of Sunbelt Corp., which has opened the 18-course Jones Trail in Alabama, supported Fitzgerald's stance. "We've spent less than $150 per hole per year for the last three what you can get. It isn't going to cost you a dime more to put another player on the golf course.'

HOT BUT HEAVY

To fill tee times during Florida's hot days, Lansbrook's Gagliardi improved his rounds from 114 to 164 per day on Terrific Thursdays promotions in July and August. Enlisting cooperation from area hotels, restaurants and other businesses, Gagliardi ran closest-to-the-pin contests on every par-3, two long-drive contests and a daily grand prize drawing, plus specials in the restaurants. He developed a mailing list using the registrations for the drawing.

SATISFYING THE CUSTOMER

"Grass and people: Those are the two things you have to spend your time thinking about," said Lesnik.

While saying a golf course should "spend what you have to spend on turfgrass maintenance - you'll get it back in the long run," Lesnik added: "We're as concerned that the people who play the $9 round [at one of our courses] feel they got value for their money as we are about the person who paid $95 [at another course]. It could have been a larger percentage of the ex-

- Jim Snow, director, USGA Green Section
- now, more than ever, the turf authority

· Carol Browner, administrator, Environmental Protection Agency - like her or not, she's a force to be reckoned with reputation as golf's top designer

· Craig Price, president, American Golf Corp. — led AGC on acquisition binge, then formed publicly held acquisition wing, National Golf Properties.

From a publisher's point of view, it's interesting to note a large number of publications have entered this market over the past five years. If I miss one, I apologize to any of my peers. But here's a sampling:

Environmental Summit

Management, founded 12 years ago by actor Robert Redford, specializes in bringing together the forces of environmentalism and industry. According to Director Terry Minger, the Center — a 501-C3, or non-profit organization - has staged "meaningful, productive" conferences on oil drilling in the Bering Sea, reauthorization of the Clean Air Act, the ozone debate and global warming.

"We're an organization that builds bridges," said Minger. "We're not an advocacy group. When we brought people together for the Bering Sea seminar, we had 18 oil companies there, as well as environmental groups."

Minger said he expects no more than 65 or 70 attendees, equally representative of the golf/resort industry and environmental groups. Minger added that he possesses a solid grounding in the golf world, having been city manager in Vail, Colo., during con-pendable income of the person who spent $9 than it was of the person who spent $95." Just as debt service often determines just how profitable you are going to be on an annual basis, don't ever forget the greens fees are where it's at. That's what drives the money.

One of several Lesnik suggestions: "If vou sell permanent tee times at a public golf course, a lot of people are discouraged from coming. Sell every second, third or fourth tee time. If people want to play your course, they will pay a premium for a tee time. And if you stagger them in a way that is convenient for you, you won't discourage other play."

SOW AND REAP

"Have fun and ... make a difference. The key to that is give, give, give, said Alfonso, who is part-owner of The Rail in Springfield, Ill. "We can all make a difference in our lives - to the people around us, to our communities ... "

What you sow in goodwill will return manifold to you in increased business, Alfonso said, adding that key to his business is building lasting relationships. He cited a study that found that "winning over a new customer is five times more expensive than selling a product to somebody who's already your customer."

struction of a Pete Dye course there. Minger was also involved in the development of Desert Mountain and the Palmer course in Whistler, British Columbia, Canada.

"Golf has been given a bad name because of the mega-developments," Minger said. "It was a way of selling property instead of playing the game as it was originally constituted. We aim to invite people from the golf industry to show the green side, to show the good examples.

"Instead of sniping at each other and filing lawsuits, we're going to sit down and talk. We'll see what the environmental groups find wanting and how the golf course industry can respond and, in the past, I believe golf has shown itself to be very responsive."

Patterson said a preconference meeting is scheduled for June or July, when speakers and conference organizers can devise a first-draft program and walk through it.
