McGinnis elected secretary-treasurer, joining President Grigg, VP Williams

By PETER BLAIS

SAN FRANCISCO — Paul McGinnis was elected secretary/treasurer and Michael Wallace and Tommy Witt won seats on the board of directors in the contested races decided during the Golf Course Superintendents Association of America annual meeting held here in late February.

In the two uncontested elections, Gary Grigg of Royal Poinciana Golf Club in Naples, Fla., was chosen president and Bruce Williams of Bob O'Link Golf Club vice president.

McGinnis is head superintendent at Union Hills Country Club (CC) in Sun City, Ariz. Under the reorganized format, he should run uncontested for the GCSAA vice presidency in 1996 and presidency in 1997.

The 43-year-old Arizona State University graduate bested George Renault of Burning Tree Club in Bethesda, Md., and David Fearis of Blue Hills Country Club in Kansas City, Mo., for secretary/treasurer.

Renault and Fearis will return to the board of directors, where they will be joined by Wallace, Witt, R. Scott Woodhead and Immediate Past President Joe Baidy.

Wallace, 44, is head superintendent at Hop Meadow CC in Simsbury, Conn., and was elected for the first time.

Witt, 41, head man at Wynstone Golf Club in North Barrington, Ill., was re-elected to the board.

Woodhead, of Valley View Golf Course in Belgrade, Mont., has another year to run on his board position and Baidy of Acacia Country Club in Lyndhurst, Ohio, remains on the board for one more year as immediate past president.

Wallace and Witt edged Canadians Paul Dermott of Oakdale Golf & CC in Downsview, Ontario, and David Gourlay of Club Summerlea Inc. in Dorion, Quebec, for the two available director positions.

"It's quite an honor, but very humbling to go to that first board meeting and realize the scope of what's going on in our profession," said Wallace, who attended his first meeting the day after the election.

Wallace has been named chairman of the Conference and Show Committee as well as the Membership Committee. He plans to attend an orientation meeting at GCSAA headquarters in Lawrence, Kan., on April 10.

"Our focus will be on the superintendent's professional image, the environment and membership services in the coming year," he predicted.

Clute 'helping part of the game'

SAN FRANCISCO — Accepting the Golf Course Builder of the Year Award here, Paul Clute spoke of "the opportunity each one of us has to help some portion of the game," and thanked material suppliers, subcontractors and course architects

Presented the Golf Course News award during the Golf Course Builders Association of America's annual banquet, Clute said his staff was utmost in the success of his firm, Paul Clute & Associates, Inc. in Hartland, Mich. "I think it is second to none," he said.

Stossel: Gov't should do less policing, more educating public

By MARK LESLIE

SAN FRANCISCO — Putting the blame squarely on government regulations and a willing accomplice, the media, John Stossel told an International Golf Course Conference and Show audience that the marketplace ought to be allowed to do the regulating in this country.

The ABC-TV consumer reporter joined panelists Dr. Kimberly Erusha of the U.S. Golf Association (USGA), who called on golf course superintendents to get people in their community directly involved with golf course environmental efforts; Ron Dodson of the Audubon Society of New York State, who urged superintendents to "reach out positively and not negatively" to the environmental community; Paulette Pyle of Oregonians for Food and Shelter, who recommended being present in the halls of state capitols "when legislation is introduced," not afterward; and Anne Leslie of the federal Environmental Protection Agency, who said "exciting" strides are being made to speed up bureaucracy.

Stossel declared the market operates in mysterious and surprising ways, and all concerned should step back and let it do its work.

For instance, Stossel said, "The FDA doesn't have to be a police agency — one that just says, 'Yes, you may,' or 'No, you may not'; but rather an information agency. Those companies that want to submit their drugs for approval could get the FDA yellow label. And those of us who are nervous could only take those drugs with the yellow label."

"The market," he said, "polices itself. Information gets out and information solves problems. Better Business Bureau get involved. We saw [in cases of freedom from regulation] that often the market was almost magical in solving problems."

The antithesis, he said, is that "by messing with the market, you create nasty side effects."

People die from obesity while the FDA drags out approval of a drug that could help them, he said. Huge amounts of time and money are spent researching and regulating things that have minimal effect on the general public.

Stossel pointed the finger at his fellow consumer reporters who, he said, work on the belief that "consumers are basically victims played upon by businesses [and that] we need government agencies, lawyers, an elite of intellectual people watching over us."

He said he agreed until he saw "what was really going on," and added, they consume vast amounts of money, cost businesses to comply and absorb a lot of human energy.

"Businesses, instead of inventing better golf clubs, better products and ways to clean the environment, are spending money going to Washington, forming associations, and lobbying to manipulate the leviathan that Washington has become. All this red tape suffocates the economy and kills freedoms," Stossel said.

Meanwhile, the regulators have little effect on "the obvious crooks, the true sleazoids, the people selling the breast enlargers, or the lose-fat-while-you-sleep diet pills," he said. "They [crooks] kept getting away with it, just hiring lawyers to help them get around the rules, change the name of the company or move to another state. The regulations didn't hurt them, but it hurt people ... who were
