NEW PRODUCTS

Otterbine offers Fractional Series

The Fractional Series by Otterbine-Barebo incorporates many features from Otterbine's other aeration systems, but at a fraction of the cost. This new line of high quality water features, designed for small ponds at golf courses, includes all three of the interchangeable spray patterns: Starburst, Phoenix and Rocket. The Phoenix and Rocket patterns can be varied in height and diameter by simply adjusting the diffuser ring. You determine your spray pattern and change it whenever you like.

These 1/2-horsepower units are manufactured entirely of stainless steel and thermal plastics. Each unit in the fractional series comes standard with 100-feet of power cable, st/st debris screen and a mini-power center. The power center includes ground fault interrupter and a 24-hour on/off timer. As the motor is cooled by water rather than oil, the unit requires no maintenance. And Otterbine is the only aerator manufacturer to have each aeration system electrically safety tested and approved as a package by ETL and ETLc.

For more information, contact Otterbine Barebo, Inc., 3840 Main Road E., Emmaus, Pa. 18049; or call 1-800-AER8TER.

Wilbur-Ellis offers biological fungicide

Bio-Trek 22G, the first EPA-approved biological turf fungicide, has been introduced by Wilbur-Ellis Co. First developed by Dr. Gary E. Harman and Dr. Thomas E. Stasz, the product was studied for effectiveness at the Geneva Campus of Cornell University in the Departments of Horticultural Sciences and Plant Pathology. It was further developed and is being manufactured by TGT, Inc., at Geneva, N.Y., for Wilbur-Ellis.

Bio-Trek 22G is a strain of the beneficial fungus, trichoderma harzianum, produced in a granular form for use of turf. It is non-toxic and non-pathogenic to vertebrates and plants and will not contaminate ground water. Effective in reducing dollar spot, pythium, and brown patch, Bio-Trek 22G also enhances root growth and increases plant vigor. Trichoderma is a common soil-inhabiting organism found in relatively low levels in nearly all soils. The strain of this fungus in Bio-Trek 22G is more effective than these natural strains and is formulated for maximum efficacy. It colonizes on roots and soil very quickly after application.

The use of micro-biology to develop new, environmentally friendly products such as Bio-Trek 22G is part of Wilbur-Ellis' commitment to environmental stewardship. Next on the horizon is a new, sprayable Bio-Trek product that will enhance and prolong the benefits of Bio-Trek 22G.

For more information, contact Wilbur-Ellis Co./Western Division, 2903 South Cedar Ave., Fresno, CA 93725; or call 209-442-1220.

New weather sensor

Weather Metrics, Inc. has developed a stand-alone weather station that can monitor up to 200 sensors, seven weather parameters and also calculate evapotranspiration for up to six crop coefficients.

The Turf Watch Weather Station does not require a computer. But with a computer, the station's software works within Microsoft Windows. Data is read at .8 second intervals, averaged, and recorded at increments defined by the user.

For more information call Weather Metrics, Inc. at 1-800-869-6629.
