EAGL management soars to new heights

Dallas firm doubles in size with last year's acquisitions

By PETER BLAIS

IRVING, Texas — Evergreen Alliance Golf Limited (EAGL) of Dallas doubled its management portfolio by taking control of 11 courses in the past year, making it one of the most active mid-sized players in the golf course management arena.

The privately-held firm controls 24 courses scattered across the United States including private, resort, daily-fee and municipal operations.

"We think we can grow by 10 courses per year into the foreseeable future," said President Gary Heward. "We're looking for equity and lease arrangements. We're also open to management contracts if the situation is right."

EAGL is a full-service management firm offering operations, marketing, maintenance, merchandising, food and beverage, construction and project management services.

The Dallas-based company has several courses under construction. All except one should open this spring:

- Canterbury Golf Course in Parker, Colo., an 18-hole Jeff Brauer design that EAGL will manage. EAGL is also a part owner.

The 8th hole at Painted Dunes Golf Club in El Paso, Texas, one of the award-winning EAGL facilities.

- Quarry Oaks Golf Course in Lincoln, Neb., a wooded, 18-hole design by John LaFoy located along the Platte River. EAGL will manage the facility.
- Pacific Springs Golf Course in Omaha, Neb. The first nine will open this spring and the second nine and an 18-hole putting course next year. EAGL is an equity partner along with Landscapes Unlim-

MARKETING IDEA OF THE MONTH

Magazines aid course promotion

By PETER BLAIS

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga. — Taking a page from its success in the real-estate market, Network Publications has expanded its reach to golf courses looking to increase their business.

Network prints The Real Estate Book, a digest-size publication containing four-color ads, photographs and descriptions of choice properties offered by local real-estate agents. The advertiser-supported book is published in 460 markets nationwide and distributed free at banks, real-estate offices and other locations frequented by potential home buyers.

"We've basically taken the same concept to the golf industry," said Product Manager Craig Ridley, referring to Golfer: The Great Golf Values Magazine.

Like its real-estate cousin, Golfer is also a digest-size, four-color magazine. It contains predominantly full-page ads with photos and descriptions of golf courses within a specific geographical market. There is little if any editorial copy.

The formatted ads generally include a brief description of the course, amenities, course statistics, rates, course address and telephone number. Golfer is available in 16 golf markets nationwide with plans to go to 20 this spring.

"We started with just two publications back in July, 1994, Atlanta and Broward/North Dade counties in Florida," Ridley said. "It's been growing fairly quickly."

Golfer publishes between three and six issues per year, depending on the length of a particular market's golf season. This provides courses the opportunity to update their information every 60 days.

Network prints 25,000 copies of each regional issue at its 600-person Atlanta printing facility. Local independent contractors sell ads and distribute magazines free to courses, ranges, retail shops, bars, restaurants, hotels and other places golfers visit.

"It's a very targeted distribution that gets into the hands of golfers," Ridley said. "With a free publication, you have to reach a target market. If you print 25,000 copies, you have to get them into the hands of 25,000 golfers."

"Advertisers can promote some sort of an incentive, but this is not a coupon book. The formatted ads are the most popular and we have graphic artists with extensive backgrounds who can tailor specific ads to a certain market."

In addition to golf course ads, Golfer also features ads from nine-hole courses, golf getaway package dealers, practice ranges and golf pros.

Golf car lawsuits bewilder courts, course operators

By NANCY SMITH, J.D.

The quick and easy operation of a golf cart enhances the game for many enthusiasts—until someone gets hurt. Injuries occur in various ways, from backing into a player loading clubs on the rear of the cart to falling out of the cart on a sharp turn taken too fast.

But the common factor after any injury is a search for who is at fault—often in the form of a lawsuit. Suit may be filed against the driver, the manufacturer, the servicer, the seller or the owner or operator of the golf course where the accident occurred.

In a comprehensive study of golf cart lawsuits, legal author Boyd J. Peterson, J.D. analyzed lawsuits across the country which involved injuries from carts.

"A golf cart may not be a dangerous instrumentality in all situations, however, many actions are brought against various persons and entities to recover for injuries resulting from the operation of a power golf cart," Peterson said.

Anyone involved in the chain of causation of the accident can be held responsible for an injury. Although state laws vary, most states permit recovery from anyone whose negligent conduct caused the injury. Historically, many states had a rule of "contributory negligence" which prohibited an
