SEDONA GC RETAINS AZUL VERDE

SEDONA, Ariz. — Azul Verde Design Group, Inc., a Cave Creek-based landscape architecture company, has been hired by SunCor Development Co. to design the exterior landscape around the soon-to-be-completed Sedona Golf Resort clubhouse. Plans call for a 16-foot multi-tiered natural waterfall feature and a unique boulder and red rock formation to highlight the practice greens and clubhouse area. In addition, a number of devegetated pinyon junipers and singleleaf pine trees will be added to accent the smaller vegetation surrounding the practice facilities.

AURORA TAPS KAVANAUGH FOR MUNI

AURORA, Colo. — The city of Aurora Golf Division has hired Ken Kavanaugh to design The Homestead at Murphy Creek Golf Course, planned to open in 1999. The site will include a mixed-income, single-family golf course community. The $7 million project is expected to break ground in late 1997 or early 1998 and will be the latest addition to the expanding Aurora Golf Division. The homestead and farm concept will be evident throughout the golf course design.

Airport-area courses ready for take-off?

By J. BARRY MOTHES

"Cheap land near airport. Water, sewage and electricity already in place. Located near transportation center. Possible neighbors include office or industrial parks. Round-the-clock security available."

Sound like a good fit for golf course development? In a growing number of locations across the country — from Mississippi to Los Angeles to Minneapolis-St. Paul — it is.

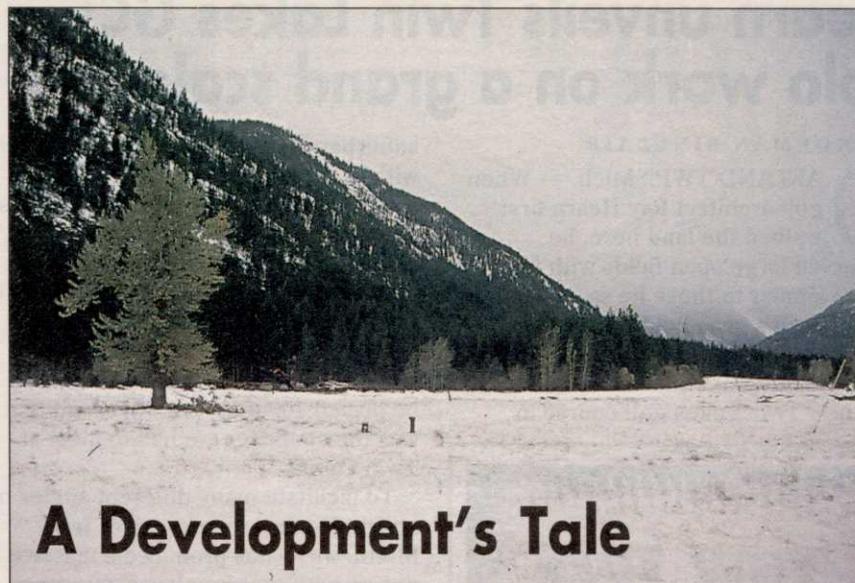

Within the last year, an increasing number of public golf course projects have been proposed for sites at or very near airports. Some, like the under-construction Airline Golf Club at the Hattiesburg-Laurel Airport in Mississippi, are close to becoming reality.

The 18-hole Airline Golf Club is scheduled to open for play by September. The daily-fee golf course will cover 141 acres and sit near an 800-acre business park run by the airport authority.

"We think we've got a very good match with the golf course at our airport," said David Senne, executive director of the Hattiesburg-Laurel Regional Airport Authority, which is leasing the land for 25 years to the developer, Deerfield Golf. The golf course was designed by Rich Fulkerson, who is also part of the development, design and management team.

"We have excellent transportation access," Senne said, "with the airport and an

A Development's Tale

Some fairways have already been cut at the Bob Cupp-designed Arrowleaf course.

Happy ending for 25-year-old Wash. state proposal?

By BOB SPIWAK

M AZAMA, Wash. — Okanogan County here is getting its first planned 18-hole golf course. This is a major event, considering this county is larger than Connecticut and Rhode Island in area. Even more significantly, this project, designed by architect Bob Cupp, has taken more than a quarter century for construction to begin. And, although fairways have been cleared in the forest, the new Arrowleaf development is not yet out of the woods.

To understand the conflict — which has, at times, pitted neighbor against neighbor — a closer look at the resort site is necessary.

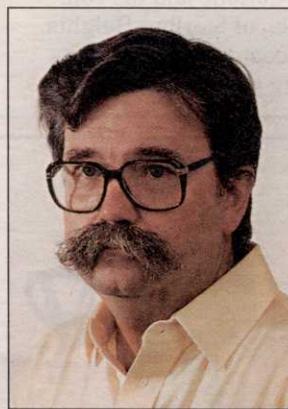

Until last year, the hamlet of Mazama comprised a store/gas-station and an inn. Located at the county's northwest corner, the town is surrounded by national forest, a wilderness area and the North Cascades National Park. State Highway 20, which bisects the resort, is closed by snow from November to April. The area contains the nation's second-largest groomed cross-country ski area. At the upper end of the 70-mile-long Methow Valley, the pristine setting has attracted new residents from throughout the country.

In 1970, when The Aspen Corp. conceived a destination downhill ski re-

Destination: Morocco? It's not far off

By PETER BLAIS

MARRAKECH, Morocco — With plans for more than 30 to 40 new courses ready for play by the 21st century, this small north African country clearly seeks recognition as a leading worldwide golf destination, according to Kamil El Kholti, chairman of the Communication and Development Committee of the Royal Moroccan Golf Federation (RMGF).

"King Hassan II has given his blessing to developing golf in Morocco and has put Mr. Driss Basri in charge of putting the plan into operation," Kholti said. "There are three parts to the plan.

"First, we want to develop more Moroccan golfers. There are 6,000 licensed golfers now and each club has golf schools to develop more.

"Second, we want to develop new courses, especially in conjunction with real estate and hotels.

"Third, we want to create strong events to enhance Morocco's image. We already have events like the Hassan II Trophy

Golf Course News: Looking at it historically, how strong is the European golf development market today?

Cabell Robinson: Today, and over the past year, is basically the nadir, with the possible exception of 1973-76 when we had gasoline rationing and the Arab-Israeli war. Golf development here was on the uprise for quite awhile and then, about three years ago, it went into a nose dive. I think there were a number of factors. Germany started pumping US$75 to US$100 billion a year into East Germany, which makes sense but took a lot of money out of other markets they might otherwise invest in. Other countries — like Spain and Portugal — went into the Common Market. In some sense that was great for the infrastructure of the countries, but Portugal is the only country right now in Western Europe where there is a modicum of decent golf course development.

In the last couple of years, there have been projects going on, but all the "big names" have pretty well pulled out of Europe the last few years because there was a real slowdown... London is a good example. The big names — Rees [Jones], [Jack] Nicklaus and Bobby [Robert Trent Jones Jr.] — did some
