RohMid partnership a work in progress

American Cyanamid, Rohm & Haas optimistic Mach 2 will receive EPA approval

By HAL PHILLIPS

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — It's been nearly six months since American Cyanamid Co. and Rohm & Haas Co. formed RohMid L.L.C., a marketing and sales joint venture charged with developing, registering and commercializing a new insecticide, RH-0345.

The eagerly awaited product has a name, Mach 2, and RohMid officials seem confident the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) will register the product this year.

Yet the fate of grubs and soil-borne pests — the targets of Mach 2 — have taken something of a back seat, as observers of the turf and ornamental industry gauge the success of this unprecedented partnership. In a time of unmatched competition, mergers and acquisitions among multinational chemical conglomerates, can cooperation really work? What lessons are there to learn?

In search of answers, Golf Course News sought out two primary players in the partnership: Janet Giesselman, Turf and Ornamental product manager for Rohm and Haas and chair of the four-person board overseeing the joint venture; and John Thomas, PhD, manager of the RohMid project.

Golf Course News: How has the partnership worked out so far?

Janet Giesselman: It really couldn't be better. We're

Solo cart leads British invasion

"Suddenly the cart is starting to move [in sales]," said Tullis from the headquarters here of his firm, CF Leisure Mobility Ltd., or A La Carts. "For years, we've been battling our heads against the traditional 'no-carts' attitude. Gradually it's getting through to management and committees that everybody is getting older. We all have hips and hearts and knees, and why should an elderly member suddenly not be able to play the game any more?"

Tullis and Brown, who've been manufacturing three-

Course Superintendents Association of America show in Las Vegas, Feb. 6-12. So said Gene Hintze, formerly of Sandoz and now the head of Novartis Turf & Ornamental.

"For right now, you can call me director of Novartis Turf & Ornamental," said Hintze, who relocated to Novartis' North Carolina office. "In Las Vegas, we plan on hosting a media reception, Sunday
