OREGON COURSE 'RE-TEES'

WELCHES, Ore. — The Resort at The Mountain here is improving its Three Nines golf course by rebuilding two holes. The project includes reconstruction of the 4th and 5th holes on the Foxglove Nine. On the 4th hole, the tee area has doubled in size, going from two to four tee boxes and a retaining wall has been added to the tee area using recycled concrete. Two tee areas have also been added on the 5th hole. In addition, the existing tees were raised and landing area lowered to provide a better view of a pond located down the fairway.

In design, blood proves thicker than water

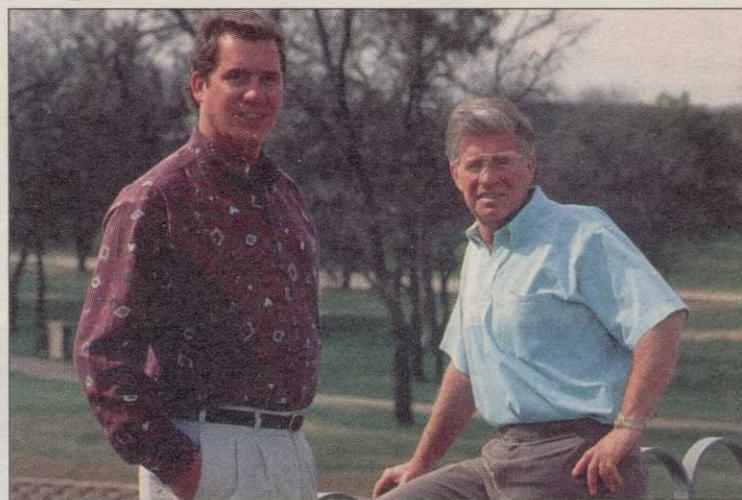

No hazards when it comes to father-son partnerships

By MARK LESLIE

Tim Nugent was born on a golf course construction site. W. Bruce Matthews III grew up at Grand Haven (Mich.) Golf Course, managed by his father. Carter Morrish has been around the likes of Jack Nicklaus and Tom Weiskopf since he was a toddler. Heck, golf course architect Bob Cupp was his youth football coach. When Trent Puddicombe was born two years ago, his architect dad, Grant, assessed him this way: "Just another little shaper."

This father-and-son golf course design gig can no longer be dismissed as merely anecdotal. It has gone beyond fad to trend.

The golfing public generally knows the Joneses (Robert Trent Sr. and sons Rees and Robert Trent Jones Jr.), the Dyes (Pete and Alice and sons Perry and P.B.) and perhaps the Nicklauses (Jack, Jackie and Gary). But, there are more: the Nugents (Dick and Tim), Morrishes (Jay and Carter), Robinsons (Ted and Ted Jr.), Aults (Brian and Eric), Cupps (Bob and Bob Jr.),

Carter (left) and Jay Morrish: Who's in charge? Father says, "I'm the boss." But son believes "we're more partners."

Davises (Arthur and Lee), the Puddicombes (Sid and Grant and Mark), and Mootes (Bob and Dave).

The list goes on. There's Tom Fazio's boy in the dirt with his Tonka truck, and Dan Maples' son in his pile of dirt-cum-miniature golf course.

"Trent already has a toy John Deere dozer," said Grant Puddicombe. "He's the only kid with a USGA-spec sandbox."

Bruce Matthews likens the heir apparentry of course architecture to that of old-fashioned apprenticeship.

"It's like a watchmaker, tinker and silversmith," said Matthews. "Look at what the Jones boys are doing: just what dad did. I'm doing just what granddad [W. Bruce Matthews] and uncle Jerry [Matthews] did. The same with Dan Maples [son of Ellis]. All of us, doing what dad did, with our own twists."

Many sons of architects have gone into other fields altogether, only to return to their "roots" — outdoor work with their fathers. And others know from an early age they want to work in golf — in some way, or in whatever way they can — and never stray.

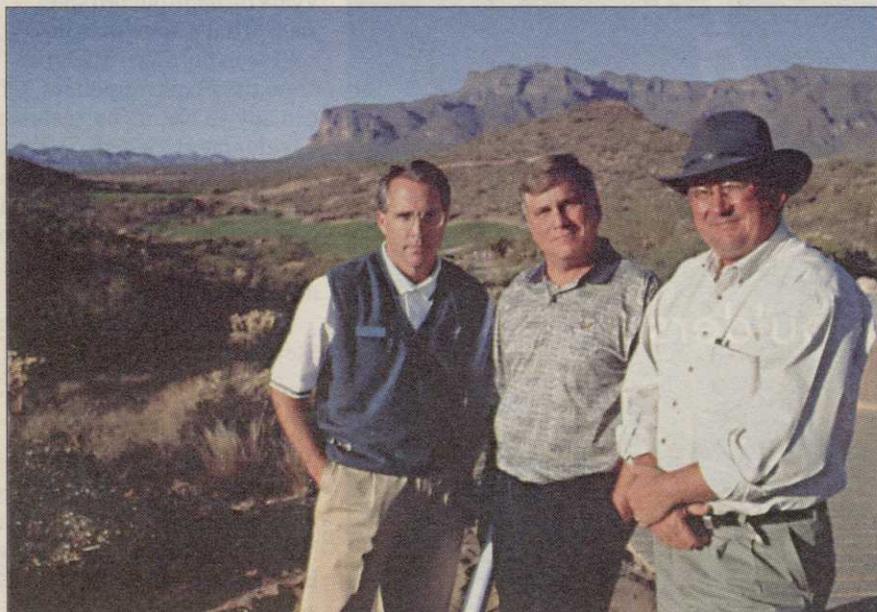

"Before joining me, Tim got a degree in engineering and construction management and was building high-rise office buildings," said Dick Nugent, whose firm is based in Long Grove, Ill. "I told him, 'You know all the skills of the construction industry, but you need to know about the money.' He went back to school and got an MBA, then came here; he has added a lot to our business."

Zontek honored with GCBAAs Rossi Award

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Stan Zontek, for 20 years an agronomist with the U.S. Golf Association (USGA) Green Section and director of its Mid-Atlantic Region, will receive the 1997 Don A. Rossi Humanitarian Award from the Golf Course Builders Association of America (GCBAAs).

The GCBAAs will present the award at its annual Awards Dinner, Feb. 9, in Las Vegas during the Golf Course Superintendents Association of America's International Golf Course Conference and Show.

The award "is one of the most pleasant shocks of my life," Zontek said. "I knew Don Rossi. I know the kind of individual he was, all the hard work he did for the industry, and to be a recipient of this award sincerely is the highlight of my career. This is no idle comment. It is a fact."
