FOREST HIGHLANDS TAPS KITCHELL

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. — Kitchell Contractors will serve as construction manager/general contractor for infrastructure during the expansion of Forest Highlands, a golf community eight miles south of here. The $15 million project, developed by DMB Associates and the Forest Highlands Homeowners Association, includes lot development for 170 custom home sites with lot sizes averaging three-fourths of an acre, mass grading for a Tom Weiskopf-designed golf course and six miles of roads and utilities. It totals approximately 500 acres. The project began in May and should be completed by the summer of 1998.

Former Player chief to write own Signature

By MARK LESLIE

STUART, Fla. — After overseeing construction of 35 golf courses over the last 10 years for Gary Player Design Co., Jim Applegate now will put his own signature on golf courses. Applegate, the founder and former president of Player Design, already has two contracts on his desk for Signature Course Design and will finish projects already started with Player, he said.

“Rather than a sharp break in business, it’s a very smooth, long-term transition,” Applegate said. “In fact, I agreed with Gary last week to work on a project in New York State. We have four or five courses under construction and will finish those as well. It will take 1-1/2 to 2 years.”

Signature Course Design, in fact, is “the same staff, same equipment, concepts and philosophy that were developed along with Gary,” Applegate said from his offices here.

While the firm is working for its own accounts, if clients desire “name” architects for reasons of marketing, course style or demand, Applegate will put together the team, he said.

Indeed, Signature Course Design has “loose verbal arrangements” with three or four PGA Tour players, including one major LPGA star, Applegate said. “I personally think that’s [female designers] been a missing element. There are so strong, natural features that allow an architect to do a lot with rock formations, water and undulating ground. That makes for bold, striking courses and often memorable holes.

McBroom taking full advantage of Canada’s ‘strong, natural features’

Canadian Thomas McBroom is president of Thomas McBroom Associates, a Toronto-based design firm he founded in 1978. He has designed more than 60 courses, including such widely known layouts as The Links at Crowbush Cove on Prince Edward Island (PEI); Le Geant at Mont Tremblant, Quebec; and Camelot Golf Club in Cumberland, Ontario, all first- or second-place finishers in Golf Digest’s Best New Course in Canada Awards. Current work includes projects in British Columbia, Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, PEI, Vermont and Barbados.

GCN: Is there a particular course of yours that solidified your reputation?

TM: Crowbush Cove gained a lot of recognition. The land allowed us to design something similar to Pete Dye’s Ocean Course at Kiawah Island [S.C.].

Any architect would be lying if he told you he didn’t want to build a course by the ocean. You don’t get sites like that very often. Politically and environmentally it took some time to get approved. But it was worth the wait.

GCN: In general, is it hard to get approval for a course in Canada?

READY TO TEE IT UP IN GALENA

The General at Eagle Ridge, the new 18-hole addition at Eagle Ridge Inn & Resort in Galena, Ill., held its grand opening ceremonies over Memorial Day Weekend, May 23-26. Designed by two-time U.S. Open champion Andy North in collaboration with architect Roger Packard, The General might have been in play last fall — but discretion has once again proved the better part of valor. “The course had an excellent fall and winter to grow in,” said Jon Comber, general manager at Eagle Ridge. “We made a tough choice late last summer to not sacrifice the integrity of play an open the course early. Over Memorial Day weekend, we saw the rewards of that decision.”

No slowdown seen in Asia’s hottest market

By ROB GLUCKSMAN

QUEZON CITY, The Philippines — More than three years into the Filipino golf-development boom, construction companies are still building here and the market for memberships remains strong, despite overall concerns about a building glut and the 1998 presidential elections.

With at least eight major projects completed in the past five years and 20 more under construction — plus dozens more in various planning stages — the country remains Southeast Asia’s hottest market for new construction. Despite apparent overbuilding, golf-industry leaders point to strong fundamentals which separate The Philippines from market disasters which have befallen, for instance, the Thai market.

“The big difference here is that you’ve got real estate underpinning the value of the shares,” said Rudy Anderson, regional managing director for ClubCorp, manager of The Orchard Golf & Country Club outside Manila. “It’s not a ‘right of access’ like you have in Thailand. Members actually own the project, the land and improvements, and share values are based on that net asset value.”

“All the projects under construction are solidly financed from what we can see,” agreed Ed Johnson, area manager for East Asia for Rain Bird Irrigation. “Our business is good, and there are none
