It's a 'softer, gentler' Nicklaus in design

By TED JOHNSON

He is an icon of golf. Perhaps the greatest golfer ever, his face recognizable the world over. He has rung up scores of PGA Tour and Senior Tour victories, was named Athlete of the Decade for the 1970s and, in 1988, was selected Player of the Century. He has a closet full of green jackets from Augusta National for his Masters victories.

Jack Nicklaus

Yet, the 58-year-old Columbus, Ohio native's work as an architect may be more lasting than his playing records.

"Of the early courses I did, more than half were for tournament golf," he said during the ceremonial first round at Grand Haven Golf Course in Palm Coast, Fla. "So I got a reputation for doing difficult courses because I had to build them that way. I have opened 164 courses. Of those at least 100 you probably won't hear of. The pros won't hear of [Grand Haven]. Yet more than 60 of my courses have held more than 300 professional tour events. We're very proud of it."

After the round, Nicklaus sat down for an interview.

Nicklaus opens 164th course: Grand Haven

PALM COAST, Fla. — Grand Haven is "a good member's course," designer Jack Nicklaus said at the opening of this new layout that winds through marsh and woods. Although Grand Haven won't host a U.S. Open, it is memorable, enjoyable, even picturesque.

Nicklaus' work at Grand Haven features the varied flora and fauna, live oaks, saw palmettos, cord grass and marshes. Though it is located about two hours northeast of Orlando, it has some South Carolina low country in it. The oaks and sandy waste areas on the 13th and 14th holes, particularly, seem uncharacteristic for the area but are pretty just the same.

The layout measures from 6,350 to 7,069 yards. Landing areas are wide and well defined. The sight lines to the hole on the par-4s and par-5s, with the exception being the 18th, are obvious.

For all the forgiveness that Nicklaus allows on the tee shot, he's much more demanding on the approaches to the

Ex-Paragon employee starts fresh

By MICHAEL LEVANS

ATLANTA, Ga. — Terry Bohannon — a 20-year veteran in the golf development business — believes that you learn from the mistakes of others.

As a matter of fact, he's so certain that this lesson applies to the golf course construction business that he's gone off on his own to form Live Oak Golf Construction Co., based here.

"Being in this business for so long I was able to see that there's a lot of work out there right now," said Bohannon. "And with the right management and the right people it's a great time to be in this business and do it right."

For the last four years he worked with Paragon Construction International as project manager and director of field operations. In that capacity he managed the construction operations of 13 golf courses in the Pacific Rim, including Shanghai Links in China, New Capital in Japan and Borneo Golf Club in Malaysia.
