Getting right to the heart of the matter

A little forethought can help emergency personnel save a life

By MARK LESLIE

LOMPOC, Calif. — After Village Country Club lost one member to a heart attack while on the course, and another collapsed from allergic reaction to a bee sting on the 8th green, the president and superintendent had an idea that many courses across the country might copy.

They labeled all perimeter out-of-bounds posts with the street address of the nearest house. Therefore, if an ambulance needs to be called, by cellular phone or radio, life-saving time can be saved.

"With a membership whose average age is 65, we need to minimize medical emergency response time," said superintendent Bob Taeger. "Hopefully, the plan will never be needed. But, if an emergency does occur, the few minutes saved locating the emergency site will minimize the injury."

The street address of the house in the background is posted on this out-of-bounds marker at Village CC to help emergency vehicles quickly locate an injured golfer.

Automated external defibrillators: standard equipment for courses?

By DOROTHY NELSON STOOKEY

Without warning, while enjoying a round of golf, an elderly man with no known heart disease collapses from sudden cardiac arrest. Fire department personnel respond in less than eight minutes.

But they have no automated external defibrillator (AED). They initiate CPR. Twenty-two minutes later, paramedics arrive with a de-fibrillator to shock the man several times. But it's too late. He's dead.

I didn't write this scenario to scare golfers and course operators. In fact, I didn't write it. It's the first paragraph of an American Heart Association (AHA) pamphlet called "Cardiac Arrest and the Need for Early Defibrillation." The AHA is leading a campaign to have AEDs installed in emergency service vehicles and public places, such as office buildings and sports arenas. Some country clubs and golf courses have bought

ClubCorp, Golden Bear develop first joint golf project

DALLAS — ClubCorp and Golden Bear International—which recently formed a partnership to build, own and operate Jack Nicklaus signature courses worldwide—will develop their first joint venture project in Dahlenoga, Ga., located an hour north of Atlanta.

The newly formed joint venture is developing the signature Nicklaus links and related club facilities at BirchRiver, a new mixed-use development. The new layout will be semi-private when it opens in the summer of 2000, with plans for it to become fully private as the BirchRiver community matures.

"We know this project at BirchRiver is only the beginning of a highly successful partnership," said Dave Richey, vice president of development at ClubCorp.

The new course will be situated in the Chestatee River valley, surrounded by mountain views and known for its past and present opportunities to pan for gold. The course will play across the river five times, and feature an island green. Other amenities will include a clubhouse, swimming pool, tennis court, pro shop, and dining facilities.

"Over the years, we have teamed

RCGA sells Glen Abbey to ClubLink

OAKVILLE, Ontario, Canada — The Royal Canadian Golf Association (RCGA) has reached an agreement to sell Glen Abbey Golf Club to ClubLink Corporation, setting the stage for RCGA growth and regionalization in Canada, according to Executive Director Stephen Ross.

The deal was expected to be completed and the purchase price announced by late January.

As part of the association's long-range plan, the RCGA is currently surveying properties in the Greater Toronto Area, Montreal and Calgary.

"We have taken the first step towards creating a new foundation for golf in Canada," explains Ross. "This deal opens many doors of opportunity to further develop our grassroots initiatives, as well as develop new golf facilities, all focusing on enhancing support of the game across the country."

The RCGA has owned the Jack Nicklaus-designed Oakville layout since 1981, but the association's desire to geographically expand and continue to develop its member programs resulted in this decision.

Contributing factors to the sale of Glen Abbey included:

- the RCGA's plan to increase its pres-
