Rutgers Short Course Ends Seventh Annual Session

FOR the seventh consecutive year, a one-week intensive course in the principles of turf management for golf courses and lawns, was conducted by the College of Agriculture, Rutgers University, February 18 to 22 inclusive. There was an attendance of 22 greenkeepers, pros, seedsmen and landscape architects, of which 14 were from New Jersey, and 8 from other states. Instruction was provided by staff members of the College Agriculture and State Agricultural Experiment Station, under the leadership of Howard B. Sprague, agronomist.

At a dinner held the evening of February 22, which brought the course to a close, certificates of attendance were presented by Prof. F. G. Helyar, director of short courses, and acting dean of the College of Agriculture.

GREENKEEPERS are busy inventing. I. R. Pierson, supt. of the New Haven (Conn.) municipal course has invented a hole cutter sharpener that's very much O.K. It consists of a carborundum wheel of proper size, fitted to a flexible shaft that may be attached to almost any small motor.

A NECESSITY FOR TURF AERATION

SPIKE DISCS aerate the turf and produce a moisture-retaining mulch—essential for the maintenance of fairways and greens. They discourage "brown patch" by preventing ground from becoming hard baked. Unequalled for re-seeding—and top-dressing. Seed and fertilizer settle in disc-made perforations and are not blown or washed away. Inexpensive, durable, easy to operate.
