often attributed to hot or cold water can usually be traced to the use of an excessive quantity of water. Sometimes an improvement is noticed after a change to another source of water has been made. The benefit in these cases is usually imaginary. In some cases they may be due to the fact that the new supply is used more sparingly for the simple reason that it costs more.

There are also some well waters which contain salts that are toxic to grass, and of course these should be avoided.

To summarize these water problems we can say that temperature of the water supply is of no significance. The mineral content is occasionally important. The quantity of water always is important.

ANNUAL TURF FIELD DAY will be held at the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station, New Brunswick, N. J., beginning at 2:30 P. M., Monday, August 10. All persons interested in turf are invited to attend.

Special feature of the day will be the testing of soil samples to determine their deficiencies for production of healthy turf.

GOLF'S MARKET PLACE

Eighteen Dunlop balls were balanced delicately in a shop window on the new liner Queen Mary. The balls retained their balance during the initial round-trip. Demonstration of the Queen Mary's smooth riding was talk of the trip.

Four illustrations in newspaper stereotype mats or halftones have been made available for newspaper use by the Golf Ball Mfgs. Assn. thru James C. Ewell, 612 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago. The illustrations show human interest demonstrations of toughness of the vulcanized cover golf balls.

A new paper towel and cabinet have been developed by Bay West Paper Co., Green Bay, Wis., which dispenses paper from a continuous roll. A cut-off forces the user to take only one towel at a time. The device is based on tests which showed that making it harder for the user to obtain a towel cuts towel consumption, as compared with use of the ordinary types of folded paper towels.

With "Mosinee Turn-Towels" the user must first push a lever on one side of the cabinet, then turn a hand crank on the other side until it stops, and last, tear off the towel against a cutter-edge.

After demonstrating before large and attentive galleries in the Eastern half of the country, the Acushnet caravan, headed by Claude Hastings, sales manager, now is on a tour of the Pacific Coast states.

This caravan is a laboratory travelling in a specially designed aero-car. Among its numerous features are many machines designed to test the balance and toughness of any golf ball. Another set of interesting machines shows the audience the results these tests have on any given type of golf ball subject to their hammering efficiency.

"How far will the modern golf ball travel?" has been answered by the driving machine carried in the Acushnet caravan. While the limit a human being can drive is set at roughly 300 yards, this machine has driven a golf ball over 450 yards. A specially built guillotine will then slice the golf ball in two and show any audience the reaction that such a power drive has had on the ball's interior.

While the Acushnet company is subjecting itself to a severe test in allowing its balls to be publicly demonstrated against any competitive balls in this grueling series, this testing method has been approved as convincing by those who have seen it in operation.

Hastings plans to take this novel demonstration outfit on a tour covering all the important golf clubs and centers on the Pacific Coast. Curley-Bates, Western Sales representatives for Acushnet, are arranging the itinerary.

In central states demonstrations the Acushnet outfit has done noticeably valu-

The new balls introduced during the British Open and on which the American newspapers commented, were the new "Red Name" Autograph Penfolds. These balls feature still further development of Penfold's exclusive cold "Chemo-Weld" process—claimed by the makers to keep life in a golf ball during manufacture. In this newest development of the process Penfold claims that he can add length to a ball, virtually at will, without making the ball "woody"—without sacrificing feel.

Marcel Dallemagne won the French Open playing the new ball.

Penfold Golf Balls, Inc. have taken over the sales and distribution of the reborn Tuffhorse bag line throughout the Eastern states. A full display of the bags may be seen at the Penfold showrooms, 11 Park Place, New York. Announcements will be released to pros shortly.
