

result of settling are filled by hand and worked well down through the mat.

Fairway fertilization must be given serious attention nowadays. I mention this because it seems to be commonly supposed among golfers that irrigation will take the place of fertilization. This is decidedly not so. Watering will supplement the use of fertilizers but will not replace them. To make the point stronger I will state it this way: that with the particular soil with which I am familiar, I could promise after several seasons to have a much better turf at less cost, by fertilizing without water than by watering without fertilizers.

While many have the habit of applying fertilizers in the spring when making one annual dressing, the practice is changing to early fall. Observers point to the latter as being more satisfactory where crabgrass is a menace. It is also probable that this custom might help in clover management by encouraging a strong growth of grass in the cool season and at the same time bring about a softer condition in the clover plants to make them susceptible to winter-kill. Our general practice in the past has been to put on the fertilizer early in the spring; it got the job out of the way and it gave the grass the full advantage of the spring growth.

GOLF'S MARKET PLACE

The 1936 carton and box for Tommy Armour golf balls will make a colorful display in pro-shop display cases. Worth-Ball Comington pany, Elyria, Ohio, report heavy advance orders indicate a great year for this ball.

Carpenter Lawn Mower Sharpener, distributed by Stoneacres, Princeton, N. J., is meeting with fine reception by greenkeepers. All types of mowers, hand or power-operated up to 36-inch blades, can be handled on the machine, and blades are given a "straight line edge" to assure uniform contact between reel knives and bed knife.

No particular skill is required to operate the sharpener, the makers claim, nor is it necessary to take the mower apart, since the whole unit is placed in the sharpener and the actual sharpening is almost automatic.

Illustrated literature will glady be sent any golf club on request to the distributor, Stoneacres, Princeton, N. J.

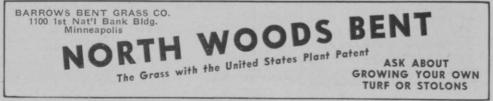

New markings on Silver King boxes and balls are eye-stoppers. The ball has a king's head marking that's strikingly different.

Chicago pro office of Wilson Sporting Goods Co. moves March 1st to suite 1201 Kimball Bldg., Jackson and Wabash ave. The complete Wilson line of pro merchandise will be on display and sufficient stock carried to meet all ordinary demands of the pros.

Darmil Corporation, 1416 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo., is introducing to the equipment market its new precision Seeder, which measures and plants all kinds of grass seeds evenly at a uniform depth. Fourteen circular knives of sawsteel, 1¼" apart, cut narrow furrows into which the seed drop. Only half the usual amount of seed is needed, the makers claim, since they are not scattered to the wind, but actually planted. On any medium sized to large seeding program the original price of the machine can be saved.

Mechanically built to last a lifetime, it is easy to manipulate and will turn at short angles. The Darmil seeder was created by T. H. Riggs Miller well known turf authority and developed by Eugene Darnell.
