WHAT'S NEW

Canvas Products Corp., Fond Du Lac, Wis., has introduced something entirely new and different in their bag line for 1939—the Caddy-Master, the oval bag that's built in reverse. Five models, ranging from the No. 38R, an 8" smooth grain genuine elk leather bag holding 14 clubs, to the No. 17RC, a 7" popular priced model for either men or women, comprise the new Caddy-Master line. Caddy-Master bags will be sold through pros only.

Exclusive features of the Caddy-Master bags are (a), when bag is being carried, clubheads line up behind dividers automatically, thus distributing weight evenly regardless of the number of clubs in the bag; (b), grips of clubs lay in 'fan' position instead of crowding together, thus allowing easy removal of clubs; (c), a built-in metal plate, pressed to conform to the shape of the bag and concealed below the handle layer, prevents bag buckle, assures perfect club distribution and easier handling.

Folder on the Caddy-Master line may be had by writing the company.

Toro Mfg. Corp., Minneapolis, to meet the needs of an enlarged volume of sales, announces an augmented selling organization to provide better service for all sections.

In the Buffalo district, the Wheeler Equipment Co., 242 Hopkins st., will act as distributors and carry a complete line of parts and machinery. In southern Ohio, Benjamin K. Cohee, old time Toro representative, has moved to Cincinnati and opened up a new place of business with complete service facilities. His new address is 5605 Montgomery rd., Cincinnati. In Indiana, distribution of Toro machinery is being handled by the Kenney Machinery Co., 301 West Maryland st., Indianapolis.

In western Tenn., northern Miss. and eastern Ark., the Choctaw Culvert & Machinery Co. of

● BENT GRASS ● BOTH SOD AND STOLONS

Vigorous, healthy stock that develops fine, true putting surfaces. Write for full information.

Greenkeeper Cliff Anderson, Sioux Falls, S. Dak., is shown taking his new heavy duty Goodyear tires over some rough going, all a part of his every-day job of keeping the Elmwood course in perfect playing shape.

Memphis are covering the territory—and in New Orleans, the Fletcher Equipment Co., 309 Magazine st., are taking care of La. and southern Miss.

Farther north, Kirk L. Keller, Creve Coeur, Mo., is the new Toro distributor for St. Louis and southern Ill., and in Mont. the Connelly Machinery Co., headquarters at Billings, and a branch at Great Falls, are distributing in the Rocky Mountain section.

Crawford, MacGregor, Canby Co. is emitting lusty and legitimate boasts this winter because, beginning with the Armour-Cruikshank win of the Pinehurst pro-pro best ball, followed promptly by Armour's win of the Mid-South Open at Pinehurst, the tournament circuit has yielded a mighty pleasing record. In seven of the winter circuit events Tommy Armour clubs have been the implements of the victors. Ben Hogan, operating with Tommy Armour clubs, won the driving contest at the San Francisco tournament.

Armour and Clarence Rickey, Genl. mgr. of MacGregor's, together with their team-mates on the MacGregor advisory staff, offer additional evidence beyond the tourney winners' roster, in exhibiting evidence of a great start toward a record year in performance and sales at pro-shops.

McClain Bros. Co., Canton, Ohio, announces a new Power Hydro-Mixer outfit which it predicts will make a big hit with greensmen everywhere. The popularity of the hand-operated Hydro-Mixer for quickly treating and fertilizing putting greens is the maker's basis for believing this development of adding an inexpensive gasoline motor assembly, with complete attachments on a portable platform, thus making the Hydro-Mixer a power outfit, will add many more McClain boosters.

Hand-operated Hydro-Mixer owners may purchase the power unit and attach to the old mixer within a few minutes. Those who have no Hydro-Mixer outfit will find the new power mixer a labor and time saver. The outfit is said to run a whole day on a few cents worth of gasoline.

The new mixer will be on display at the Kansas City Equipment Show, officials announced. Complete literature may be had by writing the company.

Perfection Sprinkler Co., Plymouth, Mich., in spite of unusually adverse weather, reports 1938 a most successful year for the company, and according to A. S. Lyndon, Mgr., the outlook for 1939 is very good indeed. Lyndon indicates there will be few changes in Perfection sprinklers for 1939; changes made last year proved satisfactory in every respect.

Sales of One Man Proportioners have been going well, the company reports. Introduced in 1937 as a new time-saving device for treating greens for brown-patch, applying fertilizer, weed killer, etc., the One Man Proportioner proved immediately popular with greensmen. Expecting even more of a demand for the Proportioner during 1939, the Perfection company has made an improvement in this item that will bring down the time required for treating brown-patch to about $\frac{1}{2}$ minute for each 1,000 sq. ft.

Movies of both the Perfection sprinklers and the One Man Proportioner in action will be shown at the Perfection booth at the annual greenkeepers Equipment Show.

Lawn Equipment Corp., 601 W. Larned, Detroit, announces its new Master Power Lawn Sweeper, motorized on both brush and traction, for quickly and economically cleaning and sweeping turf. Sweeper has capacity of 35 bushels, is easily handled and turned, and has brush width of 40". Also, Sweeper leaves no drive-wheel marks. Complete information may be had upon request to the Lawn Equipment Corp., sole distributor.

Arthur D. Peterson Co., 420 Lexington ave., New York City, for 1939 repeats its custom of sending customers and friends a calendar reproducing an old-time golf photo. Subject of this year's calendar is Walter J. Travis putting in the final round of the 1904 British Amateur with his famous Schenectady putter. Grouped around Travis in the photograph are Edward Blackwell, his opponent, and such old-time golfing celebrities as Andrew Kirkaldy, Arnaud Massy, Alf Toogood, Archie Simpson, John Moller, G. Herbert Windler, Lord Northbourne, Eben M. Byers, James Robb, Devereux Emmet, James Hepburn, Ryder Richardson, and Norman Hunter.

Pictorial Score Card Co., Inc., 26 Broadway, New York City, reports lively response to their distinctive new score card offer. Replies from golf clubs and associations from all sections of the country have been coming in daily, indicating the popularity of the attractive standard-size scorecards printed in three colors with a concise illustrated golf lesson, written and posed by leading U. S. professionals, on the back of each card.

The W-W Grinder Corp., Wichita, Kans., in a recently issued circular, describes its new Wichita Model C Compost combination. The new Model C meets the requirements of most users of compost i. e., the average user; for those with larger requirements the Model 18B, also described in the folder, will handle the job perfectly. This equipment will be on display at the Wichita booth at the Kansas City convention.

"The average user wants to blend and mix, screen and grind, economically, and this is just what the Model C is made to do," say the makers. "Tough sods are handled with knives and this, with other features, makes the Model C one of the greatest all-purpose combinations." Model C auxiliary equipment can be purchased to fit other compost grinders, regardless of make. The combination has a weight of 120 lbs., and floor space at bottom of 17 in. x 27½ in. It has corner to corner width of all feed tables, at top, of 40 in. and extreme width of combined feed tables, at bottom, of 20 in. Horsepower is from ¼ to ½ for screening and from ½ to 1 for grinding.

Model C equipment is also recommended for re-grinding and screening insecticides, chemicals and similar products that have become lumpy. Folder, or complete catalog on complete Wichita equipment, may be had on request to the company.

The Colvin Co., Chicago, Ill., manufacturers of the Subsurface irrigator, announces the addition of many new distributors throughout the United States. Dealers report that home owners saved many new trees, shrubs and plants last year with their "Water at the Roots" irrigators.

Advertising this year will reach thousands of potential users. Jay A. Colvin, president, reports production has been speeded for spring deliveries.
