Golf business organizations and golf clubs are asked by the government's Defense Savings staff to adopt immediately a payroll allotment plan for sale of defense bonds and stamps.

Urgency of the need for war financing and the imminent peril of inflation make the payroll allotment plan one that can best serve the wage-earners desire to pitch in and help in the crisis.

Saving is tough enough normally for the wage earner. Now the incentive of backing up kin in the armed services makes the American wage-earner eager to hold out some of his hard-earned pay and chip it into the collective kitty. If this can be done by bookkeeping, so much the better for the high-hearted guys and girls who are accustomed to the strain of stretching between pay days, regardless of the amount they receive.

And when the storm is over, and we're still earning American wages, instead of functioning as one of Hitler's New Order slaves, we can cash in those defense saving chips to our great joy.

That'll be a consummation devoutly to be wished by the wage-earner whose history generally shows a photo-finish with the sheriff. It will be a cash reward for the sacrifice of skimping now—if you can call it a sacrifice after reading of the lads who died and who are yet to die in Freedom's War!!!
