Small Clubhouse Design

a natural way, easily accessible. For instance, one should be able to reach the toilet rooms without wandering through locker rooms, and showers should be directly connected to the locker rooms.

As for the design and construction of the building itself, the tendency nowadays is toward simplicity and functionalism. Where the clubhouse is essentially for summer use only, it may be built accordingly. A building that is somewhat spread out presents an attractive and open feeling and is also more adaptable for additions. A building should be so designed that any part of it, such as locker rooms and dining rooms may be enlarged with a minimum expenditure.

In designing a larger golf club, the problems remain essentially the same as those of the small club, the main difference being that a fully equipped kitchen, a separate dining room and men's and women's lounges may be provided. The dining room and main lounge should be so correlated that they may serve as one very large room.

The clubhouse should be designed primarily for the enjoyment of golf which is an outdoor summer game, yet with an eye to its utility and convenience for winter sports. Freedom of plan with light, airy areas is essential. A conveniert, economically operated plan which can be enlarged without too much expense, will not be outmoded.

The alligator carcass Golf Pax in which Byron Nelson carries his weapons was a Christmas present from Cloyd Haas, head of the umbrella company Byron represents. Cloyd got the hides and had Rad Thompson, pres., Tufhorse Co., make the bag. It's to the Pax design that has individual compartments for the clubs. MacGregor Golf, Inc. of whose staff Nelson is a member, is exclusive representative of the Tuthorse bag line.
