

ACUSHNET'S 'FUSSY FOURSOME' PLAYS TO BIGGER AUDIENCE

The Fussy Foursome, Acushnet Process Sales Co.'s famous golf course characters will play to greatly increased audiences this year with the scheduling of advertisements in Golfing, Sat. Eve. Post, Collier's and Time. Developed over three years ago by H. B. Humphrey Co., Boston, the wartime experiences of the fussy four golfing gents helped keep the morale of American golfers at high pitch when golf supplies were at their lowest ebb. Now, before bigger, happier peacetime golfing audiences the campaign is expected to eclipse the successes of previous years. This year, with production on its way to normalcy the advertisement again will stress the idea that an Acushnet ball will help better the player's game, and emphasize that Acushnets are sold the world over through pro shops only. Harry Beckhoff is the artist of the cartoon series.

DETROIT'S MUNICIPAL REDFORD GC BUSY YEAR-ROUND

How a municipal golf course can function as a city-wide recreation center in both winter and summer is demonstrated daily at Detroit's Redford GC. It is accomplishing exactly what the city's recreation commissioners promised it would when they recommended its purchase.

They told the city it would be just as much a winter playground as a warm weather golf course. So convincing were they that the city began condemnation proceedings and invested $172,000 in the layout. Last summer, its first as a municipal center, the golf course took in a gross of $36,020 for 27,959 rounds of golf.

This winter it became the goal of cold
