

within reach of the average golfer. After a six month's trial results show that faults in the swing can be corrected easier after the individual sees his own mistakes and teaching professionals recommend the photo analysis system as a corrective aid for beginners and experienced golfers.

Photo Analysis is not a novelty. It is a series of 25 4x5 inch photographs taken with a high speed camera showing 25 different positions of each individual swing. Photographs are processed at the course in a portable developing laboratory maintained for this purpose and the analysis is delivered to the golfer the following day.

Photo Analysis Systems has a modern laboratory unit with experienced personnel ready to serve golf and country clubs anywhere. There is no guarantee or minimum charge made. All arrangements are made directly with the club professional. Clubs with members desiring this analysis service should write Photo Analysis Systems, 53 West Jackson Blvd., Chicago, Ill.
