THE GOLF NEWS IN BRIEF

This year's National Open would have had the largest entry in the event's 50 year history if all who wanted to get in had mailed their entry blanks and money before the deadline. . . Strange that fellows who can read scorecards so well can't read the numbers on calendars. . . PGA is going to have to pay more attention to the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce. . . The Cedar Rapids Jaycees' didn't repeat with a tournament this year. . . They complained that PGA Tournament Bureau didn't handle its end of bills for the Cedar Rapids tournament last year. . . The Ft. Wayne Jaycees roar about not getting adequate star representation in its field for its initial $15,000 tournament. . . That's all bad business for pro golf. . . Many of these energetic Jaycees become country club presidents. . . Jaycee promotion put the pro tournament players into big business. . . Jaycees now are running the world's biggest golf tournament promotion, their national junior championship, and swing more weight than any other organization in the country in getting new courses built.

Joseph M. Busch, mgr. of a Bank of Manhattan branch, has urged Mayor Wm. O'Dwyer of New York City to add to city's 10 munny courses. . . Busch says present courses far inadequate for New Yorkers who want to play golf. . . Editorial in Redmond (Ore.) Spokesman, under heading "Are You A Slob?," urged construction of a munny course. . . Says a slob is one who gets in a mental and physical rut and playing golf is most pleasant way of keeping out of the rut. . . Oberlin (O.) GC planning new clubhouse.

Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., to have new 18-hole privately-owned course near Plantation homes. . . F. C. Peters heads the job. . . Ft. Lauderdale also to have new munny 18. . . Sec. Victor Moore of local hotel association says Ft. Lauderdale has lost many visitors because of city's poor golf facilities. . . Seattle, Wash., Associated Boys Clubs and pros in a drive to collect old golf clubs and pass them around to kids. . . Pros are giving kids free instruction. . . George Pratt, Fairway Fanfare columnist of Seattle Post-Intelligence writes: "If you're going to take your golf seriously this year, why not go all out by buying a new set of course-wreckers and turn the old tools over to the young folks who may learn how to use them to best advantage?"

Soquel, Calif., to open Eagle Woods 9-hole course owned by Tom Prescott, late in August. . . Pompano, Fla. planning a $225,000 18-hole munny course on wartime airport site. . . Lots of increases of munny course fees this year. . . Increased maintenance costs given as reason for the fee rises. . . Haven't noticed many complaints about the small increases. . . Apparently greenkeepers are doing great jobs of keeping the courses in good condition despite heavy play. . . Still plenty of criticism about munny courses being overcrowded and long waits for starting time.

Homer Abney, gkpr., and Guy Manley, pro, credited by Park Commissioner Gogerty, in Don Sulhoff's Danville (Ill.) Commercial News column, as making Harrison Park munny course one of state's finest. . . Abney is on green rebuilding program. . . Midwest PGA considering changing name to Heart of America PGA, according to Kansas City, Mo., Star. . . George Shipley and wife have taken over Cottage Grove (Ore.) GC.

Again we're saying, "Gosh how those kids grow up!" . . . Ruth Elizabeth, daughter of Ed and Ruth Dudley, married to Henry Lowrey Stull at St. Paul's Episcopal church, Augusta, Ga., May 20. . . A sweet and beautiful lass, that little Ruth. . . All happiness to her and the groom. . . Like the rest of us he'll learn to like being on the leash. . . Ain't bad at all when you get used to it.

That $400 pay-off on insurance to set them up in the locker-room after making an ace seems to be helping the bar sales a little. . . Liquor business sure needs the golf club business and influence now with the dry heat getting stronger. . . If the grog barons paid as much attention to getting and staying in right with the golf business as they do to tying in with the gorillas who control the night club and saloon business, pious advertising copy about temperance might carry a little weight.

Corbin (Ky.) CC to build clubhouse. . . Pocatello, Ida., building new 18-hole course and fine clubhouse as City Development Co. enterprise. . . Richard A. Hunphreys new mgr., Cobleskill (N.Y.) G&CC.

Worcester (Mass.) Parks and Recreation Commission turned down a proposal to charge pro Walter D. Cosgrove for operating golf shop concession at Green Hill course. . . Cosgrove has been pro there for 25 years. . . One commission member said charging the pro for his work for city's golfers would be like charging the city manager for holding the city manager job. . .
