

Don't Let Leaves Discourage Your Golfers — Let Them Play

The balmy days of Indian Summer and late Fall are ideal for golf play but too few courses take advantage of these unusual fine playing conditions by needlessly letting leaves clutter up fairways and greens. Lost balls and time wasted in looking for otherwise open shots soon discourage the most ardent golfers and play dwindles off. Adjoining photos show how greens can be maintained during time leaves are falling and the slackening of play avoided. Fairways can be cleared in the same way. Bert Rost, supt., Park Ridge (Ill.) CC has rigged up equipment that clears 24 ft. swath at tractor speed. Many use new power machines that pulverize the leaves.
