

The most picturesque hole on the course is the No. 2. It is 150 yds. on the men's card and 125 yds. from the ladies' tee. This hole has a tight fairway completely abutted by pine trees. A huge trap lies astride the narrow green.

The No. 8, 510 yds., is another rugged hole. The length of the hole, coupled with the fact that an accurate tee shot is required to stay on the narrow fairway, plus the presence of six traps, makes it testing.

The difficulty of the course is indicated by the fact that during the past four holdings of the annual Mary Calder open, with pros and top amateurs participating, no player has yet broken par in these 54-hole tournaments.

The golf club sponsors a minimum of four Scotch foursomes a year in which wives of the members participate. The annual Mary Calder Club tournament, open to pros and amateurs, usually attracts some 125 players. About every two years the club sponsors an exhibition match featuring an outstanding professional and top amateur golfers.

There are, at present, 205 members of the club—and their wives and other members of their families under 18 years of age are privileged to use the course. Because of the interest on the part of active members—mainly plant employees, the associate membership category has been closed.

The modest dues provide members with the same facilities afforded by some of the considerably more expensive country clubs in the area.

The affairs of the golf club are administered by officers and a board of directors, elected by the membership. Current officers are H. Y. Charbonnier, president; and Phil W. Beckwith, secy. and treas. The pro is Leo G. Beckmann, current president of the Southeastern PGA, and formerly pro at Peachtree GC in Atlanta.
