

TANGLEWOOD'S golf package

Tees on 50-place range are built on a semi-circle. Range is lighted. Short course play goes on all day and night at Tanglewood.

Another golf package that includes a regulation course, Par 3, driving range and miniature layout is being completed in Clemmons, N.C., as part of the huge recreation complex known as Tanglewood.

Located near Winston-Salem on the Yadkin River, the golf facilities cover about one-fifth of the more than 1,100 acres that the late William and Kate B. Reynolds of the tobacco family donated to residents of the area for recreational purposes. Tanglewood was established in 1954, the outgrowth of the Reynolds' estate, known as Tanglewood Farm, and there is hardly anything the planners have overlooked in providing diversion for visitors. There are picnic areas, an arboretum, riding trails, a showboat, barn theater, swimming pool, tent sites, deer park and rose garden, all within walking distance of the golf center.

6,800 Yards Long

The regulation golf course, designed by Robert Trent Jones, extends of 6,800 yards (championship length), 6,400 yards for regular play and 5,750 yards for women. Tees are an average of 65 yards in length, the course has 99 traps, and greens, planted in Tifton 328, each cover more than 10,000 sq. ft. with the largest being 14,000 sq. ft.

Adjacent to the course there is a large practice fairway. The clubhouse is a handsome, medium size building complete with lockerrooms and a pro shop in which Grady C. Shumate presides.

Funds for the construction of the course and clubhouse were made available through the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation.

The Par 3 course, 9 holes of which are lighted, is located a short distance from the clubhouse on the far side of what is known as Mallard Lake. Adjacent to it is the driving range which can accommodate 50 persons.

The Par 3 layout was designed and built by Osie Jones, who also is supervising construction of the main course which is scheduled for completion this fall.

To keep play within the pocket range of everyone, Tanglewood's daily fees are one-dollar, being increased to two-dollars on weekends and holidays. Membership fees are $100 for an individual, $125 for husband and wife and for the entire family, $150. It is expected that the regular course will become self supporting when it is put in play just as the range and Par 3 are.

Rosburg Elected Chairman of PGA Tournament Board

Bob Rosburg, 32-year old winner of the PGA Championship, was the unanimous choice of touring pros to serve as chmn. of the PGA Tournament committee for 1959-60. He replaces Bo Winger whose one-year term as chmn. has expired.

As chmn. of the Tournament committee, Rosburg automatically becomes a vp of the PGA of America and a member of its executive group. He is serving his second year as a member of the Tournament board.

First co-chmn. of the Tournament committee is Julius Boros, also second term member. Second co-chmn. is Don Fairfield and third co-chmn. is Art Wall, Jr.

PGA regulations call for the chmn. and co-chmn. to be selected from among the four player-members of the Tournament committee.

Other members of the Tournament group are Harold Sargent, pres. of the PGA, Lou Strong, scy. of the organization, and Warren Cantrell, treas.

Snead, Middlecoff to Represent U. S. in International Matches

Sam Snead and Cary Middlecoff will represent the U. S. in the seventh International Golf Championship and Canada Cup Matches to be held at the Royal Melbourne Club in Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 18-21. They are selected by Frank Pace, Jr., IGA pres., at the request of W. G. Walkley, chmn. of Australia's IGA committee.

This will be Snead's fourth appearance in IGA competition and Middlecoff's first.

Last year the IGA tournament set a new attendance record. It was held at the Club de Golf in Mexico City. Individual honors went to Angel Miguel of Spain, who will defend his title. Winner of the 1958 Canada Cup was the Irish team of Harry Bradshaw and Christy O'Connor, which will play in Australia.

U. S. has won the Canada Cup twice. Americans who have won the individual competition are Ed Furgol (1955) and Ben Hogan (1956).

The 1960 IGA matches will be held at Portmarnock GC in Dublin, Ireland, June 23-26.

Start New TV Series Oct. 11

More than 60 pros will appear in the NBC-TV World Championship golf series that starts on Sunday, Oct. 11. Matches will be shown every week thereafter at 4:30 p.m. until their conclusion on May 15.

The tournament, being filmed at leading clubs throughout the U. S. will consist of a series of elimination contests. The winner will earn $37,500 and the second place finisher, $22,500. Bob Crosby will be commentator for the series and Dow Finsterwald and Jerry Barber of the PGA, will be technical advisors.
