

Only a few of the boys looked up in these photos, so the food must have been good. Ben Chlevin (r) led the community sing.

Golfdom Luncheon

Fathers, sons, sons-in-law and GCSA officials were guests at the Golfdom luncheon, which has become a fixture at supts' conventions. It was held for the sixth time this year and about 70 persons crowded into the El Cortez's Cotillion room to snap chicken wings and talk turf with Herb Graffis and his staff. Joe Graffis, who had been a regular at the host table since the luncheons were started in 1958, wasn't able to attend the convention due to a prior commitment.

