Electronic "Putting Pro" Helps Perfect Skill

Pro Henry J. Kaiser, P.O. Box 2094, Vancouver, Wash., has designed an electronic device said to help golfers perfect putting skill. Called the "Putting Pro", the device consists of an electronic unit with an aerial and three "tattler" guides. The golfer slips the correct guide on his putter, lines up the shot and putts.

Electric signals indicate where the putter strayed and shows how to correct the stroke. The unit is portable and can be used on a rug or on the practice tee.

Hogan Design Board Tourney

A total of 22 golfers has been named to compete in the Ben Hogan Design Board tournament, to be played in Ft. Worth, Oct. 13-16. The participants are winners of qualifying tournaments held throughout the U.S. in July and August. They have received $250 each for their qualifying victories and are to be paid expenses to and from the site of the finals. At Ft. Worth, the Hogan staffers will compete for prizes ranging from $3,000 to $100.
