Special Buying Issue

- 30 Pro with the Golden Touch The California Gold Rush is still on at Haggin Oaks, and the miner is a unique and successful municipal course professional /by Douglas Lutz
- 36 Success is a Three-Man TEAM The problems that exist at golf clubs today didn't just happen. They have resulted from the way officials and the professional staff have approached their jobs in relation to the total operations at a club /by Patrick D. Williams
- 38 Profashionables /by Jean Conlon
- 41 Credit Abuse, Profit Loss Credit abuses can eat away profits, unless records and procedures governing everybody, are strictly enforced /by Ernest W. Fair
- 43 Superintendents: Are You Making Wasteful Purchases? Injury caused by air pollution to turfgrasses can be misdiagnosed by superintendents as a disease or as an insect or nematode invasion. Knowing what the symptoms are of pollution damage to turfgrasses can stop a costly and ineffective program before it begins /by Dr. James B. Beard
- 50 Chemical Regulations: How They Will Change our Courses The American standard of golf, like the standard of living, is the world's highest. An impending Federal law regulating pesticide use could drop that standard back to the weed-cluttered, disease-ridden level of 1930 golf courses, according to pessimists. Optimists say it will merely spur American ingenuity to find better ways of keeping American courses green, lush and carpetlike /by C.W. Griffin
- 58 First Aid: What's Par for the Course? Is your club adequately prepared to handle emergencies which can occur on the golf course, around the clubhouse or swimming pool? Quick thinking and basic first-aid equipment can avert tragedies /by Jerry Olson
- 86 Kitchen Equipment: Buying to Fit the Menu Wasted food, over-staffing and unused kitchen equipment plague the food operations at many golf clubs. The results are costly, and the culprit may be a menu that is too elaborate /by Matthew Bernatsky
