

Golfdom

MAY 2000 • VOLUME 56 • NUMBER 5

Tough Audience

20

Great Expectations

Battling the dreaded "Augusta National Syndrome."

By Shane Sharp

26

Do Tell

If you don't tell golfers what you do, chances are they'll never know.

By Frank H. Andorka Jr.

35

Give Peace a Chance

They're supposed to scorn each other, but these superintendents and pros strive to get along for the betterment of their careers and courses.

By Larry Aylward

48

Invasion of the Grubs

Control of these root-eating monsters depends on careful observation and precise timing.

By Frank H. Andorka Jr.

50

Fipronil vs. the Mole Crickets

You can take out these nasty critters with both new and tried-and-true insecticides. But you must constantly map and monitor their activity.

By Larry Aylward

columns

cover story

Proven strategies for communicating with today's golfers. Check out our three-part account beginning on page 20.

- 10 Flagstick
Visions of Elves
Mowing at Night
- 19 Shades of Green
FOQA: Speak Out
Or Lose Out
- 44 Golf By Design
It's Time to Stop
the Distance Madness
- 54 Money Shot
Customer Service
to the Extreme
- 60 The Human Touch
Keep Mechanics
Running Smoothly
- 76 Out of Bounds
Mountain Bikes

real-life solutions

- 56 Certain By Seed
Sodding is faster, but designer Bobby Weed used seed on the new Stoneridge GC because he knew it would create a more lasting course.

departments

- 8 Events
- 12 Off the Fringe
- 16 Hole of the Month
- 71 Tips: Financing Equipment
- 71 Leaders
- 72 Company Line
- 74 Classifieds

63

The Floating Lab

The buoyed green at Coeur d'Alene Resort is a heck of a hazard — and an excellent testing tool for environmentally sensitive course management.

69

Environmental Ecstasy

Roaring Fork's flora and fauna control pests — naturally
By James E. Guyette

News with a hook

- 12 Birdies and Bordeaux
- 14 Why Golfers Quit

About the cover

Cleveland photographer Neil Gloger had the unenviable task of creating and photographing those golfers who want Augusta-like at the public course down the street — and nothing less. You know who they are.