

Golfdom

NOVEMBER 2004 • VOLUME 60 • NO. 11

32

Picture This

Don't underestimate those cheap "throwaway" cameras and their ability to document your successes clearly.

By Geoff Shackelford

44

Going High-Tech on Tees and Greens

By blending high-tech capability and detailed low-tech artistry, designers and owners can deliver more interesting courses.

By Jerry Pate

66

Everything You Always Wanted to Know ...

Bayer Environmental Science's transition management summit draws top turf experts.

By Larry Aylward

72

The Book on Bunkers

These hazards need to be moved up the maintenance priority list.

By Jon Scott

KEEP YOUR COOL

78

Quick, Buy That Mower!

Thanks to recent tax breaks, there has never been a better time to purchase new equipment. Just don't wait till Jan. 1.

By John McPhee

84

Preparing for the Big Chill

Superintendent offers tips to control winter damage.

By Dale Morrison

cover story

BY BRUCE ALLAR

Here's how some superintendents overcome the burdens of their often-onerous jobs and remain creative in the face of difficult daily maintenance obligations.

26

About the cover

Kim Traum collected various art from all the right places to construct our cover. Yes, superintendent, that's you in the chair. Photos are by Getty Images/Peter Mason and Dynamic Graphics.

News with a hook

16 Get in the Groove

20 Back to the Future

columns

10 Flagstick

Giving Thanks for Favorite Things

12 Pin High

Some Ways We Can Help the Poor

24 Shades of Green

Trying to Reason with 'Cane Season

48 Designs On Golf

In Praise of Surface Drainage

86 Dave's World

Regarding Your Reputation ...

96 Out of Bounds

Third Parties

departments

12 Big Picture

16 Off the Fringe

22 Hole of the Month

89 The Company Line

95 Classifieds

49

TurfGrass Trends

This month, Golfdom's practical research digest for turf managers reports on turfgrass varieties of the future and more. See pages 49-64.