Fiberglass Shafts in Hagen's 1962 Putters

Walter Hagen Golf Co's new line of putters for 1962 has only fiberglass shafts. The company maintains that fiberglass shaft gives a steadier and truer swing. Shown here is the Tomboy, a center shafted model with a molded brass inlay at the "sweet spot". Also available are blade and mallet head models. Walter Hagen Golf is located at 2233 West st., River Grove, Ill.

New in Ford Division Line

Among the five major new products in the 1962 line of Ford Motor Co's Tractor and Implement Div. are a low center of gravity tractor especially suited for mowing and maintenance work, and a 1000-lb. capacity heavy duty, tractor-mounted loader of single boom design, and a flail mower which pulverizes grass clippings as it mows.

MacGregor Signs Jack Nicklaus for Its Advisory Staff

Jack Nicklaus, possibly the most widely discussed amateur who ever played golf and a pro since early last Nov., recently signed a contract with the Brunswick Corp. to serve as a MacGregor golf div. staff member. Jack's record in the last three or four years is familiar to just about everyone interested in golf. He has two USGA Amateur titles to his credit, won the 1961 National Intercollegiate Championship, and actually had fewer strokes in the combined 1960 and 1961 Opens than any other player although he had to settle for the runnerup spot the former year and for a fourth-place tie last year. He also fared well in the last two Masters and probably reached the height of his young career in the World Amateur at Merion in 1960 when he shot a sensational 269. Nicklaus learned a good deal about golf from Jack Grout, former pro at Scioto in Columbus, O., who started tutoring him at the age of 11. Young Nicklaus attended Ohio State U. where he majored in insurance and has a thriving insurance business in and around Columbus. He launched his pro career in Jan. in the Los Angeles Open and squeezed into the money, but did better at San Diego and in the Crosby.

Former Supt. Invents Device for Repairing Ball Marks

Mark-A-Way, a device for repairing ball marks, is being marketed by Mar-Al-Products Co., 1317 Nelson Way, Sunnyvale, Calif. Operated from a standing position, it is 40-ins. high and its two lever-operated forks lift ball marks by pressing them against a flat metal plate. Prototype models of Mark-A-Way have been used successfully on two Calif. courses for four years. The device was invented by Manuel T. Coelho, former supt. at Menlo CC, Redwood City, Calif., who was in the golf business from 1920 until 1954. Mark-A-Way is designed for the maintenance dept. but a smaller, lighter model is being planned for golfers.

Bill Lyons Tells of Success with Soil-Set Mulch

When Bill Lyons, supt. at Firestone CC, Akron, O., wanted to expand the club's "front lawn" for the American Classic last summer he made a quick combination sodding and planting of Merion blue and then sprayed with

Bill Lyons and his "front lawn."

Soil-Set, a special latex base mulch, and got excellent results. It didn't make the grass grow overnight, but the green liquid made it appear that it did. Soil-Set, produced by Alco Oil & Chemical Corp., Trenton ave. and William st., Philadelphia 34, doesn't blow away, but gives a holding action to newly seeded areas and then decomposes and washes into the soil. A gal. of the product dissolved in 10 gals. of water is recommended by Lyons.
