No measurements above the sill are required, no drilling is necessary and the bi-pods can be set up on any foundation. Special roof and wall panels are available for complete shading, screening, solar heating, lighting, evaporation cooling or added insulation. Around a course the Bi-Pods can be used for shelters, equipment storage, etc.

Parker Power Rake Loosens Thatch Accumulations

The Thatch-o-Matic power rake, made by Parker Sweeper Co., Springfield, O., loosens

16-in. swaths of thatch. After the thatch has been lifted, it is easily removed by a lawn sweeper. The powered tined reel consists of 104 long-lasting, hardened spring steel tines which comb the turf without being damaged by stones, tree roots or other obstacles. The tines are self-cleaning, according to the firm.

Goodall Claims Mower Cuts Through Any Growth

Goodall Manufacturing Corp., Winona, Minn., recommends the 22-in. Park Ridge rotary mower for all-day commercial use on the toughest jobs. According to the firm, the deep housing and suction lift blade design of the Park Ridge prevents choking and stalling in heavy cutting. Powered by the Goodall-Lauson 3½ HP engine, the mower is said to cut through any growth. A "floating" steel tube handle and four 8-in. ball bearing steel wheels assure handling ease.

Shakespeare Wondershaft Clubs

Fiberglas Wondershaft clubs, made by the golf division of Shakespeare Co., Kalamazoo, Mich., and endorsed by Gary Player, are receiving a big promotional push. Fiberglass shafts, says this firm, give a delicate hitting "feel" and add yardage to the shot. Player is reported as having disliked the clubs when he first used them, but now gives them full-hearted support.

Parker Thatch-O-Matic Power Rake Combs Turf

The problem of thatch is solved by the Thatch-O-Matic power rake, according to Parker Sweeper Co., Springfield, Ohio. The small tines of the machine are said to have a powerful combing action that lifts out great quantities of dead roots, stems and grass clippings without changing the appearance or vitality of turf. After the rake is used turf is freed of harmful debris and is ready to receive fertilizers and water.
