The tournament players quarrelling with the PGA is old stuff to us . . . We heard both sides of this in the late 1930's when the late George Jacobus was PGA president . . . Good thing for tournament golf the PGA won that argument . . . Now it's about the same except for TV and more golfers and more money.

Tournament golfers, from Palmer and Nicklaus down to the lesser-known boys who lead events for one day, might bear in mind it has been the golf writers who provided imagination, words and ink that made players famous and rich . . . "Arnie's Army" came first from a typewriter . . . Jack Nicklaus didn't call himself the
