Turfing the Net—

the net. These are also good services for those addictive personalities mentioned above as the price of extra hours is very high.

If you think you will spend more time on the Internet, a private server will probably be more economical. Many have various service plans that range from as little as five hours a month for under five dollars to unlimited service. The price of extra hours is around one dollar. Check the prices in your area. If a server's price is too good to be true, there is probably a good reason for it. If a server has more customers than it has phone lines and modems to handle them, you will have difficulty getting on their system. Some good questions to ask would be how often is the system maxed out and when. Then run the system for a week or so before you start giving your E-mail address out.

Excellent Home Pages for Turf

Excellent home pages for turf are:

<http://www.wisc.edu/phstest>

The phs stands for plant health services and was developed by the Plant Pathology Department at U.W.—Madison to be used in a seminar on "Turfing the Net." It contains hyperlinks to useful home pages relating to turf and other subjects such as: weather services, congressional E-mail addresses, etc. Eventually, it will have sections on landscape plants, entomology, etc. This home page doesn't always load, if you have trouble try:

<http://www.wisc.edu>

and use the hyperlink text Plant Path.

<http://www.scgt.oz.au/page11>

The above is a home page that has numerous hyperlinks to turf-related home pages and data sites.

My E-mail address for those Hole Notes articles is: tparent@minn.net
Happy surfing (turfing).
