

Headache is quite severe, and there may be dizziness.

If the victim was unconscious, this is enough to suspect serious injury.

If the victim is unconscious, place something soft beneath his head, turn the head sideways so that secretions will drain from the mouth. If the victim is awake he may lie flat. Do not give stimulants.

If there is a bleeding wound, lay a dressing over it and apply a bandage to hold it in place. Get proper transportation and handle the victim very carefully to avoid bouncing or shaking.

HEAT EXHAUSTION

Heat exhaustion is a constant problem in nearly all parts of the country.

Temperature in heat exhaustion victims can be normal, or a little below normal. The victim will be very tired, and he'll probably have a sick feeling in his stomach. He will be very weak, with pale, clammy skin. Perspiration will be profuse, and he will need help quickly.

First, he will need bed rest. Persons on the scene when a victim is stricken can administer salt (in case he is sick at first, this can be done by putting one half teaspoon of salt to one half glass of water every 15 minutes until he has had three or four doses). These victims should be seen by a physician.

LAST BOARD MEETING

At the last board meeting, several appointments were made for the upcoming National meeting in January. The first of these appointments was that of the National Advisory Committee. This committee will relay the feelings and ideas of our association to the National and at the same time will gather information from them to bring back to our own group. The men appointed were Lee Dieter, our planning director, and Denny McCammon, our editor-director and representative on the same committee last year.

Our voting delegate and his alternate were selected to cast our ballot at the election in Houston. The delegate selected was George Cleaver and his alternate is Ed Dembnicki.

The nominating committee for our annual election to be held in December was also selected. These men will be charged with the responsibility of selecting nominees to fill the vacancies left by any retiring board members and officers. Those selected are all past presidents and include George Gumm as chairman, Bob Shields and George Cleaver.
