

RANDOM THOUGHTS

The December issue of the Connecticut GCSA publication yielded the two following items:

Failure to yell "fore" cost a Danbury golfer $2,000. He was made liable for damages in that amount under a judgment handed down in Common Pleas Court in Waterbury. The plaintiff claimed that a golf ball hit by the defendant cut his eyebrow and caused eye injuries. The plaintiff also claimed that the ball which struck him was hit by the defendant from another fairway and that the latter "did not observe the custom or usage of golfers to give an adequate and suitable warning."

You may or may not have heard about the guy who was such a consistent cheat in keeping his golf score that when he scored a hole-in-one, he couldn't keep from writing a "zero" on his score card.

A big note of thanks should go to Al Watson for the effort he has put forth in setting up the fine program for Baltimore this year. It is a big job and the program really looks like it will be super. Let's have a good turnout and see if it's as good as it looks. Don't forget meeting January 10 & 11 at the Downtown Holiday Inn.

And more thanks to Dr. Jack Hall for the good job he's doing right off the bat at the University of Maryland in the public relations department. Seems everytime we turn around, Dr. Jack has a news release, an article or comment in some fashion for all to read. Keep up the nice work!
