“There was a time in my life,” said H. W. Prentis, Jr., former president of Armstrong Cork, “when I thought that all a good executive had to do was to think up good plans, and then to execute them. But I soon found through experience that there was another function — of equal or perhaps surpassing importance. And that is to create and maintain an atmosphere — a climate, if you will — of sympathetic understanding among one’s associates that will give you a chance to put your ideas into effect. Creating this climate is the very excellence of leadership!”
