keepers of Indiana into a local organization, which had culminated successfully at that particular time. He also spoke of the fact that he had done all of this for the boys as an individual and only wished he was a greenkeeper.

After Mr. Griener's talk the president adjourned the meeting, which is to meet one month later at which time the committees will report. Thus we add another link to the National Association of Greenkeepers of America. Many friends attended the meeting.

a day for labor and buys all his implements in a protected market. At present he has to ask a higher price than that for which German bent sells and rely on the superiority of his product.

The German seed is all right for ordinary lawn purposes but every greenkeeper knows what a patchy putting-green it produces. Some golfers say they like it on that account since the vari-colored patches serve as landmarks on the way to the hole, but I do not believe the best opinion would support that view. I certainly regard absolutely uniformity of texture and color as the hall-mark of excellence in putting greens.

The raising of bent grass seed is now a considerable industry in this country and it seems time that the farmers on the East and West coasts should cooperate to the extent of asking for a protective tariff against inferior foreign seed.

Greenkeepers Hold Clam Bake

The Cleveland District Association of Greenkeepers of which Fred A. Burkhardt of the Westwood Country Club is president, held a clam bake, October 15 at the Brae Burn Golf Club near Akron, Ohio. The host, L. M. Latta, owner and manager of the Brae Burn Links had everything in preparation and according to all reports the boys all had a great time.

The large attendance is evidence of the good fellowship which pervades this organization. They came from far and wide to partake of the appetizing viands which Frank Ermer the secretary had provided. Needless to say there was no business transacted as the event was entirely one of pleasure without restraint. The following greenkeepers were present:
